One of the greatest drawbacks of history teaching thus far has been the attention paid to learning by ear and the accompanying neglect of the eye. This series is built around pictures. They are very simple pictures. They are drawn with a match. Not because a match is an ideal medium but because its very nature forces the artist to be simple in the use of his image. Every child can follow these mountains and houses and roads and ships. What the illustrator can do with a match a child can do with his own brushes. He is excited to personal effort. Before he knows it, history has become a pageant of highly animated people. By the time he has read a few chapters he is inventing his own version of the dead past. From that moment on, the dead past has become a living issue.

Only one volume of this series will be published this fall. Its publication is frankly in the nature of an experiment. Each volume contains thirty full page four color illustrations and ten full page maps which Mr. Van Loon calls animated maps.

These are expensive books to manufacture. Thousands of each volume must be sold before their cost of publication can be defrayed. The publishers feel that the issuance of these books is a glorious adventure—that the teacher and parent who places these books in the hands of his children, gives them the safest guide for their future days—unconscious familiarity with the achievement of the men who made our world what it is at the present moment. Hendrik Willem Van Loon, A. B.; Ph. D.; author of "The Fall of the Dutch Republic" etc. etc., member of the Utrecht Historical Society, and formerly acting Head of the Modern European History Department in Cornell University, needs no introduction as a competent editor of such a series as this one.

VAN LOON, HENDRIK WILLEM

Ancient Man.....(30 full page 4 color illus. 10 animated maps) $2.00

All beginnings are make-believe. Wherefore we start our histories some fine morning about fifty thousand years ago and pay our respects to our earliest ancestors in the barren wilds of northern Europe. Ancient Man will tell you of his struggles amidst the glaciers and the savage animals. Then we will leave him to survive as best he can—to show you the earliest growth of civilization along the banks of the Nile and in the fertile fields of Mesopotamia. When the book is finished the accumulated knowledge of Egyptians, Assyrians, Babylonians, Chaldeans and Hebrews has been carried westward and the vast Mediterranean has become the center of a new world.

Volumes in Preparation for Probable Early Publication

The Classical World

This volume tells the story of Greece and Rome—of Greece which organized our ideas and systematized our science and of Rome which gave us the foundations for all further experiments in statecraft. Empires, however, are human institutions and as such are subject to the general law of development and decay.

The Middle Ages

From the mysterious East, hordes of wild men descended upon the well regulated orderliness of the Roman Empire. The inheritance of the Caesars, a crazy-quilt of strange fabric, went to pieces. Amidst the ruins of the ancient cities and the tractless forests of northern Europe there grew a strange new civilization—rough and ready, sentimental and cruel, convinced that this earth was nought but an unpleasant entrance-room to the blessed happiness of Heaven.

The Re-Birth of Civilization

Ten long centuries the middle ages lasted, then order was reestablished. Man had a moment of respite and reflection, and behold—he remembered strange tales of a glorious old world that must have existed years and years before his own day. He took his spade and began to dig. What he found surpassed his wildest hopes. Out of the very soil, ancient Rome and Greece were rediscovered. Happy as children, the citizens of France and Spain and Italy and Germany and Scandinavia began to apply the new visions to their old daily life. This was a glorious epoch when man understood that this world was not a vale of tears but a wonderful spot full of fine sunsets and beautiful music and happy dancing.

The Conquest of New Worlds

After a thousand years of living in cramped little villages and in castles perched safely upon high rocks, man once more ventured forth into the unknown seas of the far horizon. This volume will show you his little ships navigating the furthest bays and harbors of the world. Within a short time all land and sea and mountain and river had been placed upon the map.

The Conquest of Knowledge

Then man set out upon a more perilous voyage which led him into the realm of knowledge. This book tells you the brave tales of many a pioneer who deliberately invaded the unknown wilds of prejudice and ignorance and who, for the mere sake of truth, (and without the hope of discovering the pot of gold) risked his life and soul that coming generations might be free to substitute established fact for revealed authority.

Beginnings of Freedom

All this activity meanwhile had made man conscious of his own powers and his own rights. No longer willing to accept the established political order of things, he began the struggle for liberty of which this volume gives an account.

The Age of Invention

At the same time a fierce onslaught was made upon the hidden laws of nature. These were driven into a corner—were made to surrender to the microscope and to applied mathematics and, thereupon as willing slaves of the human race, they were set to work for our general comfort and benefit. This marvelous achievement of the erstwhile savage, with his stone axe, fills the pages of Book Eight.

The World Today

When we reach this last volume, we shall take stock of everything that has been accomplished during the last 5000 years and shall show how we, with all our perfections and our imperfections, are the direct descendants of these same cave dwellers and buffalo hunters who appeared upon the first pages of volume One. . . . As for volume Ten—it has not yet been written. Will it be the story of a world of happiness or an age of misery? It will depend entirely upon ourselves. We must study the mistakes of man in the first nine volumes and must make volume Ten better than any of the others.

VORSE, MARY HEATON

The Prestons $1.75

The story of the every-day life of an average American family as told by a typical American mother. A story of sons, daughters, aunts, sisters, sweethearts and friends. So real that it might be a diary of any mother. The Prestons has probably achieved a greater success than any other book of its type that has been published within the last few years and must eventually find its way into almost every American home.

"It is the best and most entertaining story of an American family of modern American fiction."—Review of Reviews.

WEDEKIND, FRANK

Erdgeist ..... 75c.

Pandora's Box ..... 75c.

These two plays make up the complete tragedy of Lulu and by many are regarded as the greatest achievement of the author of the "Awakening of Spring." In these plays Wedekind goes to the bottom of human motives, of social organization and of spiritual impulses.

"These plays are not repugnant or 'immoral'. They are 'beyond good and evil'. Wedekind was one of the outstanding literary figures of our age."—Baltimore Sun.

WODEHOUSE, PELHAM GRENVILLE

*Their Mutual Child $1.60

In Their Mutual Child, Pelham Grenville Wodehouse, the author of "Piccadilly Jim," "A Damsel in Distress," etc., pokes righteous fun at eugenics and the general bringing-up of children in glass cases. But with all of the famous Wodehouse humor there is a genuine characterization of real human beings and a tender love story that holds the readers in suspense to the last page.

WOOD, CHARLES W.

The Great Change: The New America After the War $1.50

This book is based on a series of interviews with men and women at the head of American Government and industries and with leaders of American thought. These leaders tell of what was actually accomplished under their supervision and guidance. Of results already achieved and results that are sure to follow in the near future.

"The Great Change is to me a very exciting book—the most exciting book I have read for a long time. It is a vital, timely piece of reporting for it makes clear exactly what is happening to America in our transition from peace to war."—The Chicago Daily News.

ZAMACOIS, EDUARDO

Their Son and The Necklace ..... (Boards) $1.25

Translated by GEORGE ALLAN ENGLAND

Eduardo Zamacois is one of the greatest of that group of Spanish novelists with which America is beginning to familiarize itself. Preferring to be called philosopher of humanity, the title generally bestowed upon him has been that of the Spanish De Maupassant. In these two stories there are finely etched dramas of every day life which crash suddenly into unexpected and tremendous moments. These are stories of love and passion, romance and beauty, and tragedy that is immense and ironic.

THE SUNKEN CITY

By Marie H. Frary and Charles M. Stebbins

A book of legends—each selected because of its ethical value. The purpose of the writers has been to present only such stories as reveal simplicity, strength, and beauty, free from all elements of brutality and unpleasantness with which so many of the old tales are unduly seasoned. Here are beautiful stories of the Sunken City (a legend of the Zuyder Zee), the Crystal Palace, the Silver Bridge, the Lorelei, the Magic Ring—these and the fifteen other stories make an inevitable appeal to the child's fancy.

THE MERMAID'S MESSAGE

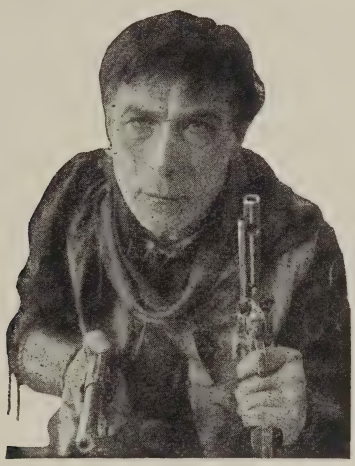
Fall Books—1919



Good News for Young America!

William S. Hart's

"BOYS' GOLDEN WEST SERIES"

(Trade Mark Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)

will be inaugurated by the publication of two titles September 1, 1919—to wit—

1. The Golden West Boys —"Injun" and "Whitey"—Net $1.25
2. "Injun" and "Whitey"—Strike Out For Themselves — Net $1.25

In the writing of these stories the author will incorporate many of his own boyhood escapades, having spent his first fifteen years in Great Dakota Territory — the same country where Theodore Roosevelt got his ranch life experiences. As he writes most of his own screen plots and has such staunch friends among the boys everywhere there need be no doubt of the excellence of his judgment in knowing the kind of fiction they most appreciate. Each volume is novel size and contains four illustrations. Cloth binding. Poster jackets in colors.

THE HIT OF THE YEAR FOR BOYS OF RED BLOOD.

Chicken Little Jane (now selling)

By LILY MUNSELL RITCHIE.

A charming story for little folk who will at once fall in love with this new "Chicken Little" of the far western prairies, whose real name is Jane —but her mother only calls her that when she's naughty. Just the kind of story children adore—birds and flowers, chickens and ducks, turkeys and geese, horses and cows. Pen etchings by Charles D. Hubbard.

The Man That Never Grew Up

By MABEL C. and WILLIAM A. LATHROP.

Publication Sept. 10th. Frontispiece, poster jacket. Cloth binding.

Here is a captivating novel, a whimsical small town story of the good old David Harum type, entirely different of course, but of the same breezy style that carried that great novel to such wonderful success. But the hero of this story, although he could have been a successful lawyer, never laid up a cent. However, he always had time to go fishing with the boys or do a good turn for a friend.

FALL NOVELS—CONTINUED

Jenny Be Good

By WILBUR FINLEY FAULEY,

Editor of Social Topics for the New York Times.

This big human story will picture to the reader the greatest drama that life can hold, from the top of the ladder down to the melting pot. There could have been no other setting than New York and its social strata, where the reward is huge, the penalty oblivion. This author has not missed a single entry on either side of the ledger, and at no time has a novel been written that so clearly portrays the world's metropolis and its people at their best and their worst.

The Creed of Her Father

By VAN ZANDT WHEELER.

In this great human story the love and happiness of a woman are played strongly upon by the creed of her father. The scenes shift between New York and the Coast of Maine. Love there is mistaken and genuine—and, as the story unfolds in dramatic intensity, many a father will look into his soul and ask: "Have I been as just as Dr. Howard?"

A Woman Who Dared

By DALE DRUMMOND,

Author of "A Man and a Woman," "The Evolution of Peter Moore," etc.

Publication Sept. 1st. Frontispiece, poster jacket. Cloth binding.

This is an out and out New York story, wherein the author excels. Notwithstanding the inevitable triangle that spells success in novel writing there is new thought and new situations in this story that keep it far above the average. New York is always interesting and this novel portrays many of its interesting phases—also how a refined woman may overcome the handicap of an overbearing husband and remain sweet and unsullied.

The Yazoo Mystery

By IRVING CRADDOCK.

Publication Aug. 25th. Frontispiece. Pictorial jacket. Cloth Binding.

This first novel demonstrates the author's natural ability to write detective stories of high order. The story ranges from New York to New Orleans and never lags a moment. The principal character, apparently disowned by his wealthy father, starts from scratch and wins out for himself. Railroad men will like this book, also traveling salesmen, and the public in general.

A Novel by A. STONE,

Those who read Mr. Stone's book will concede that he is a natural born writer of mystery and detective stories — a talent given to few. His ability to reason from cause to effect enables him to steer clear of the professional sleuth, as such, thereby creating a greater interest in his characters. They, by the use of ordinary common sense, solve their own difficulties. "Fighting" Byng is a rare creation, and his honest friend, Mr. Wood, a sterling foil. The story not only traverses the triangle of domestic difficulties but delves into the snares of spies and the triumphs of big business as well. It's big.

Cloth, 12mo., 4 illustrations.

The Evolution of Peter Moore

A Novel by DALE DRUMMOND,
Author of "A Man and a Woman," Etc.

Dale Drummond is new to the book world, but as a serial writer her name is known to millions. "A Man and a Woman," published in September, was the first of her great human life stories to be brought out in book form, the demand for which is growing steadily. In her new novel, Peter Moore goes to war but not as the average man went. He had a way of doing things differently — his own original way. It is the spirituality of the man and the author's lucid treatment that holds the reader's interest hard and fast. Dale Drummond has forsaken the beaten path in novel writing, which goes to show that there is something new under the sun after all.

Love Time in Picardy

A Novel by WILLIAM ADDISON LATHROP.

This wonderful love story coming out of the great war is of tremendous significance, and of world importance. Couched in simple terms and manner of speech it discloses the attitude of the arch enemy of civilization toward hundreds of thousands of women and girls who are turned out of their peaceful homes in France and Belgium to become the slaves of ruthless soldiers and their graceless superiors. The story of Pere Gerome and his granddaughter, Yvonne, is truth stranger than fiction, destined to point the way toward the light. "Honorably wounded," is her war record — poor, helpless, little Yvonne, now triumphant in the enlightened judgment of mankind.

Cloth, $1.50, no illustrations.

The Edge of the World

A Novel by EDITH BLINN.

Into this charming story the author has written the heart and soul of the boundless west, its kindly people, their joys and sorrows. The locale is inspiring — the broad plateau with its small trading post on the brink of the canyon — deep, dark, mysterious. And there dwells Mother Lee, "so motherly," in her wide, open, hospitable tavern, where she brings up other people's children, and shelters the indigent traveler along with the guest with gold in his palm. It's lovable, big, strong, this novel, and always to be remembered. A gripping love story intertwines.

Cloth, 12mo, 4 illustrations.

Maid and Wife

A Novel by CAROLYN BEECHER.

This rapid plot, beginning in Chicago, soon transplants itself in New York City. It has the swing of the great Metropolis. Born to wealth, the heroine, through adverse circumstances, seeks livelihood and seclusion away from the friendships of better days. Her experiences lift the lid for those who wonder about the pitfalls of the largest city in the world. The author digs deep into the heart of things, introduces many interesting characters, and leaves the reader satisfied. "Maid and Wife" is sure of the reader.

FICTION FOR YOUNG FOLKS

Georgina's Service Stars

By ANNIE FELLOWS JOHNSTON.

This is a companion volume to "Georgina of the Rainbows" but "Georgina" is older now — sixteen when the story opens, and turning nineteen at the close. Unconsciously she reveals the developing effect of the great war upon the mind of a young girl growing up under its shadow. Her message is for the "true blues," young or old, who watch and wait and work behind their service flags. — A book for all of the family.

Four illustrations in color.

"Pinto Ben—and Other Stories"

By WILLIAM S. HART AND HIS SISTER MARY.

¶ His book contains his famous poem, "Pinto Ben," in memory of his celebrated cow pony, killed in action by a stampeding herd. This poem thrills the imagination.

¶ Then there is a story in prose by Mr. Hart — "The Savage"— in lingo of the wild west, "Wanda," the Good Girl of the Dakota tribe. This story clearly shows the admiration and sympathy of the author for the American Indian.

¶ Lastly a wonderful dog story, by Mary Hart, a document in evidence of the faithful English Bull, entitled "The Last of His Blood." There are lovers of dogs who contend that this is the best story ever written about man's most faithful friend.

America's Tomorrow

By SNELL SMITH, Journalist and Historian.

¶ What will our country be doing for the next quarter century? With the settlement of the world war, will its work for humanity be over? What is its task on this continent — on the Pacific and in the Orient—on the Atlantic and in Europe—Africa and South America? How shall the United States attain its mission on earth? What problems — political, social, economic — must be settled before the Pride of Civilization comes into its own? There is no preachment in this marvelous work, — nothing academic — the author deals with an unerring law of fact and blood, which has manifested itself throughout five thousand years, and which provides a new philosophy of events. He sums up all the tendencies of a new era. He constructively presents the great issues of reconstruction. He pleads for liberty for all men everywhere and the ultimate ideal of the human race — the Federation of the World, the Republic of Man.

A Thousand Ways to Please a Husband

—WITH BETTINA'S BEST RECIPES

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
and HELEN COWLES LE CRON

With Decorations in Color
By ELIZABETH COLBORNE

$1.50 Net

The most unique kitchen and household compendium ever published—The Romance of Cookery and the Inspiration of Housekeeping—for two people in particular, and small families in general.

This volume is not the usual dull plodding kitchen cook book made up from "collected" recipes and enlivened by photographic reproductions of cakes, pies, roasted turkeys, and tables set with knives and forks placed "just so." Rather it is the "life and adventures" of "Bob" and "Bettina" who sail into the complexities of housekeeping the moment the wedding journey is at an end. Bettina's "know-how" plus "Bob's" good natured helpfulness, bring about immediate success to a lively and interesting attempt at home-building.

Bettina no more than entered her new cottage than she dons the white apron and brings every department into working order. The narrative begins with "Home at Last"—and each chapter has its little story along with Bettina's recipes (all the result of scientific training before marriage) and thus we come to find the way to success in every branch of household management through the vision of a practical and sensible young wife.
There is no department left for "guess work" from "ordinary days" to those of the "unexpected guest," the "dropping in" of friends, or the giving of a party, large or small. The book itself is a thing of beauty—handsomely embellished—practical in every way—a wonderful gift for any woman who cares about her home.

THE MASTER. A drama in three acts. Adapted for the American stage by Benjamin F. Glazer. A penetrating and stringent play this is, grave and wise, affecting and sincere," wrote Lawrence Gilman in The North American Review. Cloth, $1.00.

John Lloyd Balderston

THE GENIUS OF THE MARNE. A play in three scenes. With an introduction by George Moore. The scene is the General Headquarters of the French Army on the night of momentous decisions before the launching of the battle of the Marne. The confused history and strategy of that critical time becomes clear as a mathematical demonstration under the author's magic of dramatic vision. It is as though he had watched the scene unfold from a vantage point in the clouds. The sense of perspective is there and the focus upon the essentials. George Moore's introduction is particularly interesting in that it is one of his very few utterances on the subject of the great war. In preparation.

SNOW. A play in five acts. The author is one of the most eminent figures in modern Polish literature. Few have gone further than he in the analysis of the "naked human soul." ALL COPYRIGHT TITLES
FIVE VOLUMES

Handsomely Bound in Cloth. Full Library Size.

PRICE, 60 CENTS PER VOLUME. NET.....

CAPTAIN JACK LORIMER; or, The Young Athlete of Millvale High.

Jack Lorimer is a fine example of the all-around American high-school boy. His fondness for clean, honest sport of all kinds will strike a chord of sympathy among athletic youths.

JACK LORIMER'S CHAMPIONS; or, Sports on Land and Lake.

There is a lively story woven in with the athletic achievements, which are all right, since the book has been O.K'd by Chadwick, the Nestor of American sporting journalism.

JACK LORIMER'S HOLIDAYS; or, Millvale High in Camp.

It would be well not to put this book into a boy's hands until the chores are finished, otherwise they might be neglected.

JACK LORIMER'S SUBSTITUTE; or, The Acting Captain of the Team.

On the sporting side, the book takes up football, wrestling, and tobogganing. There is a good deal of fun in this book and plenty of action.

JACK LORIMER, FRESHMAN; or, From Millvale High to Exmouth.

Jack and some friends he makes crowd innumerable happenings into an exciting freshman year at one of the leading Eastern colleges. The book is typical of the American college boy's life, and there is a lively story, interwoven with feats on the gridiron, hockey, basketball and other clean, honest sports for which Jack Lorimer stands.

WITH USEFUL APPENDICES ON

Terms and Measures used in Physics, Engineering, etc. Foreign Words, Phrases, and Sayings; Abbreviations and Contractions; Forms of Address; Moneys of the World; Weights and Measures; Principal Mechanical Movements Illustrated.

The publishers believe that they have succeeded in producing

The Best and Most Compact Low-Priced Lexicon Obtainable

It combines a judicious condensation of bulkier dictionaries with the most modern meaning and pronunciation of English words. Special efforts were made in the orthography to give the best usage of the United States, and where two spellings were almost equally recognized they are both given.

The system adopted in indicating pronounciation is by respelling, the key being always printed in the lower margin of the pages.

The uncertainties arising from the conjugation of irregular verbs, the plurals or irregular nouns, etc., have been provided for in the different form shown in connection with the words to which they belong. Thus the forms cropping, cropped, and cropt are given with the different verbs to crop; dying and died with die; the plurals of the noun die, i. e., dies and dice, are plainly distinguished; with dictum is shown its plural dicta, etc.

The appendices will prove especially valuable, in particular that one in which the latest terms commonly used in Electricity, Engineering, Physics, etc., are tabulated and explained at length, and the pictorial appendix which illustrates movements and devices in mechanics.

Finally, the publishers believe that the clearness of the definitions, the careful discrimination of the senses of the words, the large amount of matter the book contains, together with its typographical excellence, combine features which will appeal to the American who has use for a condensed lexicon.

PUBLICATIONS OF THE CARNEGIE ENDOWMENT

The chief agency of propaganda adopted by the Trustees is by publications bearing the imprint of the Endowment. The list of these publications is already large, and some of the earlier pamphlets and monographs are now out of print. In the following list these are included, the publications no longer available for distribution being thus indicated (†).

Many of the publications are issued for gratuitous circulation, and are sent to addresses carried upon the regular mailing lists of the Endowment, or to persons writing for particular publications.

This free distribution does not apply to the publications of the Division of Economics and History nor to certain of the publications of the Division of International Law, which are highly technical in character and appeal to limited groups of students and specialists. In each such case the price is indicated. They can be obtained by remittance to the publishers, either the Clarendon Press, Oxford, England, or the Oxford University Press, American Branch, 35 West 32d Street, New York, N. Y., who are the regular selling agents for the Clarendon Press in this country.

Classics of International Law

This series, which includes the classic works connected with the history and development of international law, was undertaken by the Carnegie Institution of Washington in 1906, at the suggestion of Mr. James Brown Scott, then Solicitor for the Department of State, under whose supervision as General Editor the series has since been published. On January 1, 1917, the project was transferred to the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and the publication of the series is being continued by the Endowment's Division of International Law, of which the General Editor of the Classics is the Director. The republication of these Classics has been undertaken principally on account of the difficulty of procuring the texts in convenient form for scientific study. The text of each author is reproduced photographically, so as to lay the source before the reader without the mistakes which creep into a newly printed text. An introduction is prefixed to each work, giving the necessary biographical details concerning its author and stating the importance of the text and its place in international law. Tables of errata in the original are added when necessary, and notes to clear up doubts and ambiguities or to correct mistakes in the text are supplied. Each of the Classics is specially edited by an expert in international law and is accompanied by an English version made expressly for the series by a competent translator.

The Century Co.'s New Books

A SERVANT OF REALITY. By Phyllis Bottome, author of "The Dark Tower," etc. Colored frontispiece and 4 full-page illustrations by Norman Price. 12mo, 454 pages. Price $1.60

The author of this novel is a Phyllis Bottome that achieves heights of emotion that she never achieved before. The American reading public, for several years now, has delighted in her swiftly moving narratives about interesting and stimulating people, her rapid-fire dialogue that holds the attention and never descends to the commonplace and the dreary, her wit and humor that keeps the story in a blaze of gracious light from the beginning to the end. And all these qualities are in "A Servant of Reality" in full measure; but, in addition, there is a heightened dramatic power and a poignant appeal to the heart that no other story of hers has shown in the same degree.

And what is the story? Most of the action is in the green English country; and the chief dramatic characters are Kitty, who "loved" too many, and Anthony, who loved Kitty so much that—did he kill her? It is a powerful and dramatic story.

YELLOW MEN SLEEP. By Jeremy Lane. Colored frontispiece by George W. Gage. 12mo, 343 pages. Price $1.50

Read "Yellow Men Sleep," and your nerves tingle as if you had been racing all night in an aeroplane. Read "Yellow Men Sleep," and you are haunted with impressions of scenes and situations that seem to touch into life alluring memories a thousand years old.

It is an extraordinary story; something new and exhilarating; Oriental, exotic, fascinating.

Most of the novel's action is in the Desert of Gobi; and the plot reaches across China, and has ramifications extending back to the United States. It involves U.S. Secret Service men and an inaccessible empire in the midst of the desert, an empire made up of selected specimens of almost every race on earth. The story centers around a beautiful American girl held in the strange empire by trickery and craft, and the efforts to rescue her from her captors and herself. Threaded through the novel is a subplot dealing with the production and international sale of a mysterious drug made from seed drug out of the earth in which they had been buried for centuries.

PARIS VISTAS. By Helen Davenport Gibbons, author of "A Little Gray Home in France," etc. 16 illustrations over tint by Lester G. Hornby. 8vo, 400 pages. Price $3.50

A million or so young Americans have recently returned from France; not all of them got to see Paris, but all of them felt the ancient and ever-young city. How could they help it? For Paris is the heart of France, and you can't touch France without feeling the pulse and the warmth of its Capital.

Mrs. Gibbons, an American who has lived there, tells you about Paris, the look of it in recent days; catching its laughter and sometimes its tears, its heroic gestures, its color and movement. Go with Mrs. Gibbons through "Paris Vistas," and you will see the city more intimately and love it more deeply than ever.

THE HEART'S DOMAIN. By Georges Duhamel, author of "Civilization," etc. 12mo, 300 pages. Price $1.50

Is this the great and sweet book that was bound to come out of the war? M. Duhamel himself, in the midst of the blazing hell-fire of the conflict, wrote two books that were spendid but bitter. To one of them, "Civilization," the famous Goncourt fiction prize for 1918 was awarded. But M. Duhamel, poet, philosopher, surgeon for four years just behind the fighting lines at the front, has come up out of the depths. He has fought out with himself, under an extraordinary stimulation and with a remarkable equipment of mind and heart, the greatest individual fight in the world—the fight for personal happiness.

For himself he has won, in the midst of things that threatened black despair and worse than death, an equilibrium, a poise, a peace that may well be permanent because it is founded, not on shifting material things, but on things without change.

The book is a beautiful and thrilling record of a great soul's adventures among the terrors of pessimism. It cannot help pointing the way to peace for many thousand others.

THE NEW MAP OF ASIA. By Herbert Adams Gibbons, author of "The New Map of Europe," "The New Map of Africa," etc. Maps. 8vo, 400 pages. Price $2.50

This book does for the Continent of Asia what two of the author's previous books did for Europe and Africa—that is, it gives an idea of present economic and political conditions in Asia, a sketch of the historical background of each country dealt with, and a rather full account of the modern diplomatic contests of European nations for land and trade in Asia and the prospects for the near future.

The following chapter headings indicate the scope and nature of the book: France in Asia; The Portuguese and the Dutch in Asia; Great Britain and the Approaches to India; Paring Down Siam; Challenge to European Domain; Russian Expansion in Asia; Persia Before the Peace Conference; The Attempt to Partition Persia; The United States in the Philippines.

Dr. Gibbons, who is that rare combination, a profound scholar and a vigorous and entertaining writer, has been at work on "The New Map of Asia" for several years. He has lived in Europe a long time, has traveled much in Asia and has studied, with extraordinary facilities always at hand, the course of affairs in the various countries treated. The book comes closely up to the present date. It is as readable as it is important.

A WOMAN NAMED SMITH. By Marie Conway Oemler, author of "Slippy McGee," etc. Frontispiece. 12mo, 350 pages. Price $1.50

To the thousands who read "Slippy McGee" with surprised delight—surprised because the author was comparatively unknown when it was published—it will be necessary only to announce that this is the latest novel by Mrs. Oemler.

To those who have not read "Slippy McGee" the publishers beg to present an author in whose powers of entertainment they have the greatest confidence. Mrs. Oemler writes neither slush nor gloom, neither stereotyped romance nor super-sophisticated realism. The world to her is neither a dark, batty prison nor a rose-colored boudoir. It is uphill and downhill, and a pretty good old place to live in. The people of her books are the kind of people you and I and the family around the corner know, and sometimes they are bad, sometimes they are good, never are they angels, and always are they interesting. They laugh and cry, work and play. It is a pleasure to know them, and the author makes the reader know them so well that he laughs and cries with them.

"A Woman Named Smith" is set in the South, as was "Slippy McGee." It is a love story told with all the whimsical charm of the first novel.

AMERICAN FOREIGN TRADE. By Charles M. Pepper. 8vo, 350 pages. Price $2.50

The book is a survey of world markets and the nature of the trade which constitutes them. It analyzes and interprets the consequences of the Great War, the control of raw materials, and the nationalized efficiency of the several countries. National economic and fiscal policies as evolved from the new conditions are reviewed.

The foreign trade of the United States and the profound changes wrought in its character by the War is the central theme. Chief among these changes is our development into a creditor nation. What this means to the future commerce of the country is indicated while the influence of investments abroad is explained. The value of the new merchant marine is succinctly set forth.

The wide demand for information about trade opportunities is met in the chapters on the markets of South America, of the Caribbean countries and of Canada, while there is also description of the commerce of the Pacific, with special reference to Japan and China. Economic and political tendencies which affect the international commerce of all countries are analyzed. There are some pertinent suggestions regarding fiscal legislation in the United States, and a plea is made for a free play of American individuality.

The book's appeal is to the business man, the industrialist, the student of international commerce, and the large class of readers who seek general information on world tendencies and world events.

FIELD, FOREST, AND FARM. By Jean-Henri Fabre, author of "Our Humble Helpers," etc. Translated by Florence Constable Bicknell. Illustrated. 8vo, 353 pages. Price $2.00

This is at once a fascinating story as well as an explanation of farming, gardening and fruit-raising, and one of Fabre's famous prose-poems that compel an added interest in nature. It is one of the celebrated series written primarily for young people, but full of information and charm for any reader.

"Field, Forest and Farm" comes at a most opportune time for America. Probably as a reaction from war, which also taught the emphatic lesson of the nation's dependence on those who produce the elements of food and clothes, the attention of millions of Americans are turning to the farm. And more than ever before young America is achieving great things by harnessing himself to the sun and the soil.

The sixty-two chapters in the book deal with soils, fertilizers, most useful plants and their insect and bird enemies and friends, etc.; and the information is as authoritative as the story is fascinating.

THE MESSENGER. By Elizabeth Robins, author of "Come and Find Me," etc. 4 full-page illustrations by Giguère. 12mo, 500 pages. Price $1.60

This is that rare phenonemon—a combined mystery and love story told with the finest literary skill. Over and above the fascinating, alluring plot the reader feels, whether he stops to analyze it or not, an additional satisfaction that comes from the expertness with which words and sentences are put together, with the nice choice of words to express just exactly a shade of meaning, with the perfect matching of manner and matter.

The story revolves about an amazingly clever spy who serves in an English family as a governess. Scotland Yard detectives are on the case, but the girl matches skill and daring with them to the last.

The love theme concerns a beautiful American girl, who is an angel of mercy but who gets things mixed considerably because of her quick and loyal sympathies.

The publishers recommend the story with the upmost confidence.

MY ESCAPE FROM GERMANY. By Eric A. Keith. Map. 12mo, 300 pages. Price $1.50

A dramatic, thrilling narrative, presented with unusual literary skill, of an Englishman's three attempts to escape from Germany, the last of which was successful. There is also in the book a great deal of fascinating information about the technique of escaping from prison camps; and the author achieved a certain technique in that difficult and dangerous art in his various attempts to reach Holland and freedom. In his successful effort to reach home he carried with him two companions.

The author describes vividly life in German internment camps; and in this American edition of the book there is included considerable material that was omitted from the original English edition lest it give the Germans valuable information.

Mr. Keith tells his amazing story with a reticence, a modesty, a restraint that adds to the attractiveness of the personal narrative and prepossesses the reader in his favor

THE QUERRILS. By Stacy Aumonier, author of "The Friends," etc. Frontispiece. 12mo, 300 pages. Price $1.50

The Querrils are a sweet, amiable, well-bred English family, mother and father and five children, the youngest nineteen. They are afraid of emotion. They shut out of the closed circle of the family and a few congenial friends all the realities of life that are not respectable and comfortable and pretty. And then some of the realities that are not pretty break through the circle; it is the reaction of the Querrils to these that make this intensely interesting story.

In the last few years Mr. Aumonier has made a definite place for himself in American and English letters. He is a literary artist of extraordinary powers. Everything of his that has been printed in America possesses a rare distinction.

"The Querrils" is accounted by both his English and American publishers his best long story so far. The characterization here, making his book people seem as real as our friends around the corner, is more nearly perfect than in any previous book; and the richly wrought style, full of humor, full of intuitive wisdom, of sympathy, of music, is a constant delight.

CREATIVE CHEMISTRY. By Edwin E. Slosson, Ph.D. Illustrated. 8vo, 300 pages. (First volume in the series, "Century Books of Useful Science.") Price $2.50

This is the age of Chemistry. It has made a new world out of the old one by freeing man from the limitations of nature. It has altered the balance of power among nations, revolutionized warfare and transformed the life of man. This book is a popular explanation, as fascinating as fiction, of what modern chemistry is doing for the world, by the well-known editor of "The Independent" who was for years a Professor of Chemistry. Following are some of the subjects he treats:

Potash and Phosphates, the Other Two Essential Plant Foods.

GREEN TIMBER TRAILS. By William Gerard Chapman. Illustrated by Charles Livingston Bull and Paul Bransom. 12mo, 283 pages. Price $1.60

In these delightful stories of the Northern woods and trapping trails, whose chief figures are animals, there breathes the very spirit of the great outdoors. It is almost as good as a vacation in a tent beneath the tall pines to read "Green Timber Trails."

Mr. Chapman knows and, better still, loves the woods and the life therein. The stories have a stimulating narrative interest, carrying the characters swiftly through their adventures to artistic conclusions. In addition, the reader takes in as he follows the exciting narratives a multitude of fascinating bits of information about the woods and their animal populations, and feels the restful and blessed simplicity and quietness of vast forests beneath the silent stars. The illustrations are unusually attractive.

CAKE UPON THE WATERS. By Zoë Akins. 4 illustrations by Lucius W. Hitchcock. 12mo, 224 pages. Price $1.35

A bright, breezy comedy sort of story with a charming widow, Kitty Davenant, as the heroine, and her old friend and lawyer, Jamison, as the hero.

The story opens in a hospital, where Kitty is a far from serious patient, and where all the main characters are introduced. Here comes Jamison in the role of lawyer and lover to declaim against her extravagance and to state a passion of long standing. Kitty refuses to take either seriously, and soon after plunges into even deeper extravagance than before. But things happen around Kitty Davenant, she keeps things and people moving; and presently she is in a fierce contest which involves millions of dollars and a burglary. The story is full of stimulating talk, it moves with that speed which appeals to American readers and its conclusion is altogether as it should be.

This is one of those books that are thrilling because of the sheer size and quality of the facts presented.

American readers have heard much about the devastation in France and Belgium; and they have had bits of information and occasional shocking photographs of scenes. In this book Mr. Ford, an American who has been actively engaged in reconstruction work in the stricken areas on the Western front, gives an authoritative, comprehensive account of just what was done by the Germans, what the future effects of the devastation will be in France and Belgium, what has already been achieved in reconstruction and reforestation and what is indicated for the future. Mr. Ford's style is often dramatic and always lively and interesting.

PARVATI: A ROMANCE OF PRESENT-DAY INDIA. By Robert Chauvelot. Translated from the French by Helen Davenport Gibbons, author of "A Little Gray Home in France," etc. 12mo, 250 pages. Price $1.50

This is an alluring love story set in the India of today; and the reader is afforded, incidentally, an intensely interesting outlook upon the manners and customs of that ancient and romantic country.

The story involves two Frenchmen, one a portrait painter named Gilbert Desroches, the Maharajah of Jeypore and his beautiful official wife Parvati. Desroches meets Parvati because he has a commission to paint her portrait, and they fall violently in love with each other. Carrying on a clandestine love affair with another man's wife is reputed to be somewhat unsafe even in the most sophisticated circles of the largest and most up-to-date cities; but to carry on a love affair with a Mahareena, that is positively dangerous. It may mean torture and death. The author tells the story with unusual brilliance and power.

Price $2.50

With the exquisite literary art which the reading public has known in "Tante" and others of her novels, the author in this book tells of her own childhood in picturesque Brittany in the middle of the last century. It is autobiography covering that part of her life around which the tenderest and most vivid memories cluster; a childhood set in a section of France rich in romance and rich in old loyalties to manners and customs of a gracious era that is irrevocably in the past.

Charming vignettes of character, marvelous bits of description of houses and scenery and costume, short stories in silhouette of pathetic or humorous characters, these are also in the book. And through it all the reader sees the author re-creating a background which has influenced profoundly one of the most consummate of modern literary artists.

The thirty-two delightful full-page illustrations by P. de Leslie, are thoroughly in the spirit of the text.

FROM MIDSHIPMAN TO REAR-ADMIRAL: A RECORD OF FORTY-NINE YEARS IN THE U. S. NAVY. By Rear-Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, U.S.N., author of "The Navy as a Fighting Machine," "War Times in Manila," etc. 12 illustrations in duotone ink. Quarto, 600 pages. Price $6.00

This book is a narrative of exciting adventures and amusing incidents; and it presents a moving picture of the progress of the navies during the last half-century, showing the influence of new methods and inventions in advancing that progress. It is a document of distinct historical value, and is as entertaining as fiction of the best type.

Rear-Admiral Fiske has served efficiently in all grades of his exacting profession, filling ultimately the highest position attainable in that profession. His record of naval and military inventions is probably unrivaled. He has written many books, and has been present at many naval incidents full of war possibilities. He has, of course, traveled widely and has met numerous real personalities as well as personages, taking keen note of what came under his observation.

Into this book he has poured the best of a richly filled memory; and he presents it all with a stimulating vigor and a delightful sense of humor.

AFTER THIRTY. By Julian Street, author of "American Adventures," etc. Frontispiece by Arthur William Brown. 12mo, 273 pages. Price $1.50

The Julian Street who has delighted thousands of Americans with his books of travel, "Abroad at Home" and "American Adventures," appears in this volume with the graces of fiction added to the whimsicality, the good-natured humor, the keen-eyed observation and the mellow philosophy that have made his previous books so popular.

Wickett is the head of a great coffee company, and he is just over thirty. Mollie is a beauty, is his wife and the mother of his children. She has spirit and patience, she is just what she is and no bluffing. She is a dear, and the reader will love her.

But Wickett—well, he is over thirty. He tells himself that Mollie has settled, that she does not stimulate him as she once did, that he knows beforehand what she will say and do. So he yearns for new adventures of the heart, and he philanders.

"After Thirty" is the charming chronicle of his philandering—Janie Vaughan, Mrs. Railey, Mrs Barton and so on and on.

And the end? Well, however much the reader may love Mollie, he cannot love her half as much as Wickett does. "After Thirty" is distinctly unusual fiction.

WHITE SHADOWS IN THE SOUTH SEAS. By Frederick O'Brien. Fascinating illustrations from photographs. Royal 8vo, 400 pages. Price $4.00

This is not a heavy "book of travel." Its appeal is to the average man and woman who would like to visit strange places but cannot do so.

It is simply the tale of a year's residence among the simple, friendly cannibals in the furthest islands of the far South Seas. The reader will find only the story of what he himself might have experienced and casually learned among these savage peoples, fast-vanishing links with the childhood of mankind, vanishing because all colored races die when in contact with white men. And it is all told with such color and reality as to make it seem that the reader has himself seen and felt all that Mr. O'Brien did.

The book is really a journey to the Marquesas Islands between cloth covers; it is atmosphere and incident and color—and human interest. Its appeal is, not only to the readers of travel books, but also to the thousands of fiction readers who delight in books of facts that are presented with the dramatic intensity and narrative swiftness of a novel. The illustrations, from authentic photographs, are unusually attractive.

CONTACT WITH THE OTHER WORLD: THE LATEST EVIDENCE AS TO COMMUNICATION WITH THE DEAD. By James H. Hyslop, Ph.D., L.L.D., author of "Problems of Philosophy," etc. Illustrated. Royal 8vo, 493 pages. Price $5.00

This book appeals to the dearest hope of thousands of men and women. "Can I speak to my loved ones that have already gone? Are they really not dead?" Into these two questions are packed the age-long yearnings, not of a race, but of all mankind. Dr. Hyslop, formerly professor of Logic and Ethics in Columbia University, a sincere man of scientific methods, who has for a number of years given all his time to the investigation of the subject, has put into this book the latest evidence as to the answers to the two questions and a number of related questions.

But in the course of the book the entire fascinating history of man's endeavor to communicate with the other world, the early beginnings of mesmerism, spiritualism and the like, the initial efforts of serious and painstaking scientists, such as William James and Sir Oliver Lodge, to prove or disprove communication with the dead, all these matters Dr. Hyslop also presents with moderation and scholarly precision.

RAEMAEKERS' CARTOON HISTORY OF THE WAR. (Volume III). By Louis Raemaekers. Quarto, 200 pages. Price $1.75

The war is won, and Mr. Raemaekers made a unique contribution to the victory. In the very first days of the German onslaught upon little Belgium, the artist, sensing the murderous forces let loose upon the world, began his attack, with the only weapon in his command, upon the men and the policies of the German military party. He was then merely the cartoonist of a far from famous newspaper in Holland. Within a year he was a sort of international hero: London, Paris, New York could not do him too much honor.

His cartoons made throughout the entire course of the war constitute a remarkable picture record of the colossal conflict. They are being arranged in chronological order and published in four volumes, a volume to each year of the war. Each volume contains one hundred cartoons, each faced by a page of explanatory or supplementary text. Three volumes have been published.

Here is a story to stimulate the imagination and provide a most exciting hour of reading. It is a thriller that will be remembered. The scene is the Hawaiian Islands and the plot is shot through with the queer superstitions of the natives, superstitions which in this case are tied up with torture and violent death. And the background setting of these beautiful islands in the middle of the Pacific is fascinating in the extreme.

The passionate love story involves two girls with Hawaiian blood in their veins and the superstitions of long lines of Island ancestors in their minds. The story moves with breath-taking rapidity, the plot is rich in high-pitched dramatic situations, and the reader is caught in the spell of tense suspense until the last page.

THE GIRL IN THE MIRROR. By Elizabeth Jordan, author of "The Wings of Youth,"etc. Illustrated by Paul Meylan. 12mo, 297 pages. Price $1.50

He and his collaborator were to write a play; it was high time to begin work, but the young man could not settle down. New York attracted him. One morning looking into his mirror, he saw a beautiful girl with a pistol at her head. He had watched her reflection in his mirror once or twice before, and had located her in a room of a tall apartment hotel next to his. So he dashed downstairs got up into the hotel apartment and forced himself into the girl's room.

Such is the beginning of an alluring love and mystery story, involving a group of theatrical people which moves with exhilarating speed. It is remarkably well done throughout. It is not at all in the class of awkward, stereotyped mystery stories. The conclusion is a double surprise.

PEGGY-ELISE. By Frederic Arnold Kummer, author of "The Web," etc., and Mary Christian. Frontispiece. 12mo, 300 pages. Price $1.50

This is an enthralling love story of artist life in Paris, told with all the author's gifts of narrative, characterization and dramatic situation. Few writers of today have Mr. Kummer's equipment of experience in various directions which add such richness of background to his work. He is a successful dramatist as well as a novelist, and before taking up literature he was himself an artist. As a consequence it is not surprising that his touch in dealing with the characters and the setting of "Peggy-Elise" is so gratifyingly sure. The interest of the reader is captured in the first chapter and there is no slackening until the story concludes with a situation which will please the reader.

The authors of this book came to America early in the war on an official mission which carried them to every part of the United States. They both understand and speak English perfectly. They were not at the mercy of interpreters; their impressions are direct. Sally, the boatman's daughter, a plucky, pretty girl who knows the river and the nearby coast like a book, strike an acquaintance. Elliott is the unusual name of the quite unusual heroine of this latest story by the author of the delightful "Cinderella's Granddaughter." "Elliott and her father, who is very well-to-do, are parted by the war. He goes to France to do his bit for the Allied cause, and she, for the first time, is thrown on her own responsibility.

Heretofore she has been a thoughtless little beauty who did just about as she pleased, and was not pleased to do anything especially useful or helpful. Her father on the way to France, she goes to a farm in Vermont owned by relatives; and things turn out there in such a way that Elliott feels the call to work hard at all kinds of things, to think hard on all kinds of subjects; and she rises to the emergency magnificently.

At Circle Bar Ranch he finds an old-time boy friend, and he finds a job. The rest of the story deals with his adventures there, and ends with a revelation that means much in the life of the young cowboy.

Here is a jewel of a story, the hero of which bears the strange name of "Siddereticus"—an assumed title which piques curiosity. To give more than a hint of what it means would spoil the effect of a joyous surprise for the reader. Enough, for the present, to say that a more beautiful tale of comradeship between a "big boy," not long out of college, and a little boy, temporarily crippled, was never penned. Nothing of war here, moreover, nor rumors of war, but wonderful doings between two American "boys," one a dear little lad and the other a still dearer grown-up lad, and all under the magic, mystic sunsets of the Nile or the turquoise skies of Italy, before Europe trembled and rushed to arms in 1914. It is an idyll that will enchant every reader by its true and touching revelations of the real child-heart, of a strong man's love for it and his rich reward. The romantic Egyptian setting is especially attractive.

THE BOY VIGILANTES OF BELGIUM. By George Ethelbert Walsh, author of "The Code Signal," etc. Illustrated. 12mo, 307 pages. Price $1.50

An American boy visiting relatives in Belgium when the war broke out is caught in the net of the Germans' rapid advance; and, under the stress of the Hun's terrible rule, he explains to his Belgian boy comrades what the word "Vigilantes" means and organizes a secret society of this sort that spreads far and wide among the boys of Belgium, in aid of their stricken country. The risks the young members incur; their underground meetings and achievements; their journey on a deportation train bound for Germany and marvelous escape from it; their long, toilsome tramp across Belgium at night to avoid re-capture and to carry to King Albert a military secret of great importance, and the timely and mysterious aid rendered to them by their comrades of the "Boy Vigilantes"—all combine to form a narrative of absorbing interest from start to finish and a historical romance of permanent value.

BOY SCOUTS IN THE WILDERNESS. By Samuel Scoville, Jr. 4 illustrations by Charles Livingston Bull. 12mo, 300 pages. Price $1.50

A thrilling story of how a millionaire lumber king who was cynical about the value of Scout training to boys put it to a severe test.

He challenged a camp of Scouts to send two of their number up into his forest on the Canadian border without taking anything with them, not even food or clothes, to live thirty days. If they stood the test, they were to receive a camp in his great wilderness and he was to pay them double the value of anything they found.

How the two Scouts lived in the woods, the dangers and difficulties they overcame, the uses to which they put the woodcraft of their organization, and the outcome of the wager of the lumber king, make a story of extraordinary interest and helpfulness.

FORTUNES OF WAR. By Ralph Henry Barbour and H. P. Holt, authors of "Lost Island." Illustrated. 12mo, 352 pages. Price $1.50

"Fortunes of War," like "Lost Island," is a story of the sea, but of even more tense and timely interest, since it deals with the adventures and misadventures that befall an enterprising boy of the Maine coast, who, with an older "pal," is enabled to purchase a schooner, hire a crew, and undertake to make the voyage to France, with a cargo of valuable lumber, through the dangers of the submarine zone. The chapters recounting the fights on, and for, the vessel, and its final fate, will hold the breathless interest of every patriotic American, boy or girl, man or woman, who is fortunate enough to read them. The authors never told a more thrilling story.

VIVE LA FRANCE! By E. B. Knipe and A. A. Knipe, authors of "The Lucky Sixpence," "The Lost Little Lady," etc. Illustrated by E. B. Knipe. 12mo, 364 pages. Price $1.50

This new story by the authors of "The Lucky Six-Pence" portrays with all the color and incident of a novel, and with the added values of an historical record, the trials and triumphs of the noble French nation in its heroic resistance to the invasion of 1914.

The story opens in Rheims, the scene of the wanton destruction by the Germans of one of the best-known and most beautiful buildings in the world; and the various incidents and episodes attending the heroine's personal fortunes and her devotion to her country, form a beautiful and inspiring narrative which will cause every reader to love her and echo her watchword, "Vive la France!"

BOUND VOLUMES OF ST. NICHOLAS. The twelve monthly numbers in two large 8vo, richly bound cloth volumes. 1000 pages, 1000 pictures. Per set $4.00

Its pictures are as charming as its stories and verses; and stories, verses, and illustrations combine to educate the child's esthetic nature."

Books Published by The Century Co. in the Spring and Summer of 1919

THE BATTLE OF THE NATIONS: A YOUNG FOLKS' HISTORY OF THE GREAT WAR. By Frederic Arnold Kummer, author of "The Web," etc. 31 illustrations from photographs. 5 maps. 8vo, 328 pages. Price $2.00

"The Battle of the Nations" is unique among books about the war. Written primarily for young folks, its breadth of treatment, its charming style, make it no less appealing to those of any age who desire to obtain a simple and concise history of the great conflict. Its author, Frederic Arnold Kummer, a civil engineer by training and a close student of military affairs, is also a dramatist, a skilled writer of fiction. As a result he has invested the dry details of the struggle with such vivid color that one follows the various scenes as they unroll themselves with the same breathless interest that one experiences in witnessing the development of some stupendous play.

The publishers feel safe in saying that no matter how many histories of the great war may be written, there will be none which presents, within the limits of a single volume, a more simple, dramatic and absorbing picture.

ARISTOKIA. By A. Washington Pezet. Illustrated by Tony Sarg. 12mo, 214 pages. Price $1.50

This is an uproarious satirical farce written by A. Washington Pezet, the son of the Peruvian Ambassador to the United States. It is a jovial tale dealing with that strip of country in Central Europe which was set aside by a benevolently proletarian world about the year 1950 A. D. to be the home of that oppressed minority of aristocrats, czars, emperors, and kings which once dominated the world, but which were for some years after the rise of the proletariat, down-trodden and disfranchised. Mr. Pezet has handled a naturally humorous subject in a most provocative manner.

THE AMERICAN. By Mary Dillon, author of "The Rose of Old St. Louis," etc. 12mo, 300 pages. 4 full-page illustrations by R. M. Brinkerhoff. Price $1.50

This is an enthralling love story. The heroine, a beautiful girl of wealth, answering an insistent call to duty, goes down into a slum, lives in a settlement house and does her bit first for those near at home. The threads of her life are presently mingled with those of her new friends as well as the group of well-to-do people to which her family belongs. Two men of contrasting antecedents and manners are soon contesting for the best that any woman has to give—her whole heart. One is a young millionaire, a part of her old life; the other is a golden-hearted French-Irish boy who belongs to her new life. The war comes, and she and both men go to their duty. Which wins her in the end, and why, is the conclusion of one of the most interesting stories Mrs. Dillon has to her credit. "The American" is indeed probably her best love story.

BLUE GRASS AND BROADWAY. By Maria Thompson Daviess, author of "The Golden Bird," etc. 12mo, 300 pages. Frontispiece by Leslie G. Benson. Price $1.50

Miss Daviess tells all her stories with hearty good humor, with exhilarating zest, and with that swiftness of movement and that snappy dialogue which especially appeal to American readers.

"Blue Grass and Broadway," Miss Daviess's latest novel, concerns itself with the love story of Patricia Adair, a small-town Kentucky girl who comes to New York and is plunged into the midst of that world which is at once the gayest and most tragic, the most brilliant and the most dangerous—the theatrical world. Her happiness and that of others is at stake; in setting forth the adventures of Patricia and the people, both good and bad, who circle about her, Miss Daviess has used her most charming story-telling gifts.

The author of this thrilling novel, founded on fact, was fortunate in being able to obtain information concerning certain work carried out by the Secret Service authorities of Great Britain, which work resulted in a great naval victory. One cannot fail to be stirred by the knowledge that the actual combat at sea, one of the war's most famous naval battles, resulted from the efforts of men and women, enmeshed in a web of romance and intrigue, many thousands of miles removed from the scene of the battle, unseen figures in a drama so astonishing in its nature, so brilliant in its results, that one is again reminded of the old adage that "truth is stranger than fiction."

PEKING DUST. By Ellen N. La Motte, author of "The Backwash of War." 12mo, 240 pages. Illustrated from photographs. Price $1.50

This is a book which breathes China. Miss La Motte sees with the eyes of an artist and of a keen observer of human nature. She makes the Chinese life-like, instead of lay figures; she portrays their well justified resentment against the selfish exploitation of their nation by western statesmen: she makes one feel the rising pulse of present-day Chinese thought. And with it all she paints a fascinating picture of the splendid barbaric strain which the Chinese people inherit from the ages. With her book you live and journey in China, and look into the minds of the younger generation.

DEMOCRACY AND THE EASTERN QUESTION. By Thomas F. Millard, author of "Our Eastern Question," etc. 8vo, 446 pages. Price $3.00

Mr. Millard is perhaps the American best equipped to inform his countrymen on the subject of this book. He has lived and worked in the East for years. He is an experienced observer, he is a forceful and otherwise accomplished writer, and he is, best of all, a man who understands both the East and the West. The following chapter headings indicate the scope and nature of the book: The East and the World War; The Real Character of Japan; Japan and the War; China as a Neutral; China as a Belligerent; Evolution of Japan's Policy; The Siberian Question; China and Economic Imperialism; The Interests of America; the Responsibility of America, etc., etc.

FIGHTERS FOR PEACE. By Mary R. Parkman, author of "Heroes of Today," etc. 12mo, 311 pages. Illustrated. Price $1.50

Gathered in this volume are accurate, entertaining biographies of the twelve soldiers and statesmen of the United States and her Allies who have become most famous during the war, including President Wilson, Premiers Lloyd George and Clemenceau, Generals Pershing, Foch, Haig, Allenby, and five others. Illustrated from photographs.

NIXOLA OF WALL STREET. By Felix Grendon. 12mo, 384 pages. Frontispiece. Price $1.50

Nixola is the stenographer of one of those fabulously rich creatures whose habitat is Wall Street. She is constantly the center and the cause of cyclones; though you may shake your head at Nixola, you will find that she does clear the atmosphere, even if with violence.

The novel involves a love story, and Nixola does not so much come into her own as she takes possession of what she desires. The book is rich in that antiseptic quality so rare and yet so needed in American literature, namely, satire. Efficiency systems, New Art, Social, Psychology, and others of America's most popular and most serious-minded "movements" are gaily and deftly injected with the deadly poison of laughter. This is a wild mixing of metaphors, but it is just what Nixola would do. "Nixola of Wall Street" is out-of-the-ordinary fiction.

WHY JOAN? By Eleanor Mercein Kelly, author of "Kildares of Storm." 12mo, 407 pages. Frontispiece. Price $1.50

This is another story of modern Kentucky by one of the most vital and promising novelists of the last decade. When "Kildares of Storm" was published a couple of years ago one of the keenest American critics characterized the story as follows, and in so doing indicated the chief qualities of the author's latest novel, "Why Joan?":

"There is elemental power in Mrs Kelly's novel of Kentucky life; a candor and a vigor that are convincing. There is atmosphere, so naturally achieved, that we are unconscious of the method that produces it; which is a distinct relief after the labored, palpable impotence of the majority of atmospheric settings in these days of ubiquitous authorship."

RAEMAEKERS' CARTOON HISTORY OF THE WAR. (Vol. II.) By Louis Raemaekers. Quarto, 200 pages. Price $1.75

This is the second volume in a series of four containing the great cartoonist's drawings in chronological order. M. Raemaekers is accounted the supreme artistic genius discovered and developed by the war.

Each of the four volumes will contain one hundred full-page cartoons, each faced by a page of explanatory or supplementary text.

I'VE COME TO STAY. By Mary Heaton Vorse. 16mo, 190 pages. Frontispiece. Price $1.25

A story of Greenwich Village artist life, and as breezy and gay and charming as the perfectly incorrigible and perfectly fascinating little girl who helps along the love story of the artist and the girl from uptown.

Everybody delights to listen to a born story-teller, and Mrs Vorse is a born story-teller. In this latest and gayest story of hers, she displays her powers of charm in their fullest measure.

INVENTIONS OF THE GREAT WAR. By A. Russell Bond, author of "On the Battle-Front of Engineering," etc. 12mo, 344 pages. Illustrated from numerous photographs and charts. Price $1.75

The War of 1914-18 was more of a machine war than the world has ever seen before. The average American does not realize one-tenth of the part machines really played in the war, and how many mechanical inventions and improvements we owe to the stimulation of the great conflict. A. Russell Bond, Managing Editor of "The Scientific American," in this book speaks with authority and appealing clearness on the subject.

The following chapter headings indicate the nature of the book: Bombs and Hand Grenades; Trench Warfare; Rifles and Bullets; Guns that Fire Themselves; Super-Guns; Firing by the Map; Tricks of Warfare; Fighting with Gas and Liquid Fire; Tanks; Talking in the Sky; "Devil's Eggs"; Submarines, etc.

A TEXTBOOK OF APPLIED AERONAUTIC ENGINEERING. By Henry Woodhouse, author of "The Aero Blue Book," etc. Profusely illustrated. Quarto, 320 pages. Price $6.00

This is a mine of exact information for students of flying, presented by one of the most expert aeronautical men in the world. The book necessarily describes in the fullest detail the typical machines of all countries, and includes much information that governments would not permit the publication of until after the war.

The book should be invaluable to institutions giving courses in aeronautics, to libraries, to aeronautical societies and to those thousands of Americans who are studying, whether with or without an instructor, the fascinating subject of aviation.

A LITTLE GRAY HOME IN FRANCE. By Helen Davenport Gibbons, author of "The Red Rugs of Tarsus." 12mo, 258 pages. Frontispiece. Price $1.50

The author, with her husband and four children, occupied a little chateau near St. Nazaire in the summer of 1918. She believed in treating American doughboys from nearby camps quite special. The little chateau became a sort of home to many of them; it was always open to any of them. Mrs. Gibbons, in a simple easy, entirely human way, has achieved the task of getting the American doughboy on paper—what he thinks of France, what he felt about the war, what France thinks about him, etc., etc. It is an entirely unconventional book, a book of the heart that will touch the emotions of readers and fill them with the impulse to tell others about it.

THE MYSTERY OF THE 13TH FLOOR. By Lee Thayer. 12mo, 396 pages. Frontispiece. Price $1.50

James Randolph Stone, a lawyer famous, rich and aged, with a suite of offices on the 13th floor of a New York office building, dictated a new will to his stenographer on that summer morning, and when she had transcribed it she took with her into Mr. Stone's private office a clerk to witness it. She and the clerk walked back into the main office; and a few seconds later, hearing a groan in Mr. Stone's private office, they rushed back and found him stabbed to death. There are two main problems—who killed Mr. Stone and how could the murder have been committed at all under the circumstances? Both problems are solved in a most unusual manner.

MANAGEMENT AND MEN: A RECORD OF NEW STEPS IN INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS. By Meyer Bloomfield. 8vo, 591 pages. Price $3.50

Great Britain has already gone through an industrial revolution. The same kind of thing happening in Russia and other parts of Continental Europe has torn the nations' business life to pieces, destroyed millions of capital and put large sections of the population in the midst of famine and pestilence. But English Labor and Capital moved toward each other. There were compromises, instead of mutually destructive fights. And as a consequence Capital finds that its business is going on; and Labor finds itself in the highest position ever echieved by it, with certain great documents that guarantee its present advantageous position with constant improvement as time goes on. "Management and Men" is an authoritative account of what Great Britain has done; it capitalizes the dearly bought experience of others for the benefit of American business men, and by business men we mean those who supply the brains and labor of industry as well as those who supply the money.

American employers, representatives of labor, students of industrial conditions, and all who follow the big developments in the stirring world of labor relationships will find in this book material on which to form a judgment and guide practice. The appendix material is of extraordinary value.

DIVERGING ROADS. By Rose Wilder Lane. 12mo, 360 pages. Price $1.50

A novel to recommend.

A story of the Pacific Coast of to-day, and a Western story without cowboys or motion-picture bad men. The narrative moves with breathless speed; and the characters give that satisfying impression of reality which makes them remain in the memory as personal acquaintances. The reader will not soon forget Helen and Bert and Paul, nor the love story that binds them together. The setting of the story furnishes glimpses of small-town life in the barren oil districts, farming life in the fruit and agricultural regions and the glittering life of the joy-riders of San Francisco who hate inhibitions and love high-balls.

CIVILIZATION. By Georges Duhamel. 12mo, 288 pages. Price $1.50

This is the book that won the famous Goncourt prize for fiction for 1918. Antoine, one of the greatest literary critics of France and perhaps the greatest dramatic authority in the world, says this of the book: "If there remains there, beyond the Rhine, a single German still capable of shedding the tears with which I stained my copy of this book, nothing is lost, the world is saved. As for me, in my measureless distress of a man shuddering, overwhelmed with the failure of so many hopes and dreams, I have found again in this book a light that will let me die without despairing of all things."

And what is the book? It is not a novel; it is made up of eight or ten simple little stories founded upon the author's experience as a surgeon on an automobile ambulance behind the first line of battle at the French front from eight in the morning until noon. It is war seen, and felt, not at the centre of the stage, but off in the side-wings.

A PEACE CONGRESS OF INTRIGUE: A VIVID, INTIMATE ACCOUNT OF THE CONGRESS OF VIENNA, 1815, BASED ON THE PERSONAL MEMOIRS OF ITS IMPORTANT PARTICIPANTS. Translated, and with an introduction and notes, by Harry Hansen. 8vo, 447 pages. Price $2.50

This astonishing book should be of extraordinary interest in connection with the Peace Conference of 1919 which the whole world hoped would prove to be in direct contrast to the Congress of Vienna. It is a story of social and political intrigue, a narrative of that shameless bartering of small nationalities by kings and diplomats about which President Wilson has spoken in eloquent and indignant language. The author has drawn upon the wonderful story of social and political intrigue told by participants themselves in their memoirs. It is as fascinating as fiction.

SELF-GOVERNMENT IN THE PHILIPPINES. By Maximo M. Kalaw, author of "The Case for the Filipinos." Illustrated from photographs. 12mo, 205 pages. Price $1.50

This book reports the concrete evidence as to the Filipinos' development of the qualities of mind and character that justifies the belief that they can govern themselves independently of outside assistance and that therefore, in the American view, they should be permitted to do so. It is indeed, to the thinking and feeling American reader, a book that is positively thrilling; for it tells of one of the most inspiring experiments in national unselfishness on record. It indicates how in a little more than twenty years a backward Eastern race, with patient guidance and constant assistance from a big nation that played the part of a brother, has grown up to the estate of responsible manhood. The book is an up-to-date account by a native Filipino of what the Philippines have accomplished in the industries, in agriculture, in education, etc.

THE POLITICS OF INDUSTRY: A FOOT NOTE TO THE SOCIAL UNREST. By Glenn Frank, co-author of "Stakes of the War." 12mo, 214 pages. Price $1.50

The author says in his Foreword:

"The statesmanship or stupidity of business men is of more social significance than the statesmanship or stupidity of politicians. The recognition of this fact brought an interesting task into my hands. During the past year it has been my assignment and my pleasure to try to interpret the mind and attitude of the more forward-looking business and industrial leaders of this country in relation to the social and industrial unrest and the pervasive spirit of change that marks our time. I have concerned myself, not with the rank and file, but with those anonymous liberals of the business world—the men who may perchance be the pioneers of a new order of business and industry. I have tried to catch their spirit rather than quote their words. This volume is the result."

WHAT IS AMERICA? By Edward Alsworth Ross, author of "Russia in Upheaval," etc. Numerous graphs and charts. 12mo, 134 pages. Price $1.10

Professor Ross thus explains the object of his book:

"Our society is developing as the fathers neither foresaw nor intended. Its path is determined chiefly by the instincts of multitudes—as in the westward movement and European immigration—by our inherited institutions, and by the remoter effects of mechanical inventions. In the course of this development strain is produced on a large scale. You cannot lay it to persons, it is simply a by-product of social evolution. Of course we should seek out a remedy, but, in the meantime, we need not begin to quarrel among ourselves and hate one another.

"The bulk of Americans well understand this. . . . . They exhibit that 'firm adherence to justice, moderation, temperance, frugality, and virtue,' without which, according to the Virginia Bill of Rights of 1776, 'no free government, or the blessings of liberty, can be preserved to any people.'

"It is to vindicate and commend this 'virtuous democracy' that I offer this little book."

TORCHY AND VEE. 12mo, Cloth, Net, $1.50

Torchy, the youth with more intimate friends than any other in America. Have you ever tried to discover why Torchy is the most popular hero in American fiction? To say that he is the best beloved is merely another way of putting it. His rich, crisp humor, his cheery audacity, his sheer joy in meeting life's inevitable trouble—these help, of course, because they make him more interesting; but the real reason is his unselfish, whole-souled kindliness, and his entire competence in finding out the right thing to do and doing it. The combination of nobility of soul, hair-trigger intelligence and an unplumbed sense of humor is rare in this world. These things made TORCHY really great.

SHORTY McCABE GETS THE HAIL.

With two characters, Shorty McCabe and Torchy, with which he has alternated through a long series of sketches, Sewell Ford has won the distinction of being regarded as Mark Twain's legitimate successor as chief of American humorists.

There are many writers who are humorous, and more who are just funny, but there is not one whose humor is so spontaneous as Ford's. Added to this, he gives to his main characters a kindly philosophy which has made many thousands of readers watch for their periodical appearance.—Los Angeles Express.

Edward Lankow is not the first to write a book about breathing, but he is the first to give full, clear, precise, definite instructions on this vital matter.

"Breathe like an opera singer" is, in short, the slogan which Mr. Lankow would have every one, singer or not, remember and practise.

"What we eat is," Mr. Lankow tells us in this practical handbook "of secondary importance." It is on breath—rightly called "breath of life"—that pure blood, and consequently health, depends.

Mr. Lankow would have schools for training in the development of breath control, for happiness as well as a good digestion, physical strength as well as mental power and strong nerves—all depend on knowing how to breathe right. Begin today to breathe like an opera singer. Mr. Lankow shows you how in this book. It's for everybody.

THE "MADE EASY" SERIES

THERE is no royal road to learning.

It is an old saying, and a true one, in a sense: for prince and peasant must alike travel the path.

Yet, there are many paths, and great differences among them, as they lead to the temple of knowledge. In some, the going is easy, in some, hard. In some, the journeying is pleasant and profitable: in some, toilsome—a weary scramble over many stumbling blocks.

The builder of the road is the teacher. It is his task to smooth the way, and to make it straight: or to leave it all cluttered, a twisted, haphazard course, that runs roughly and reaches nowhere.

In the "Made Easy" Series, it has been the publisher's purpose to provide for the student the best possible road to learning—a road truly royal in its simplicity, its worth: a road wide and direct, and free from foolish, needless litter.

The various writers of the books in the series have been chosen for their special fitness. Such fitness includes, in the first place, mastery of the particular subject: in the second place, ability to interpret knowledge to others.

Right teaching makes easy learning. Few subjects are really hard to learn, when properly set before the pupil. These volumes are the product of a painstaking care to simplify every detail of instruction, yet to make it complete. The result for the student, is, indeed, a learning made easy, yet none the less exact, thorough, wholly adequate for his needs.

The volumes now ready, or in the course of preparation—price $1.00 each—are:

THOREAU, HENRY D.

To the list of handsome and convenient pocket editions may now be added "The Works of Henry D. Thoreau" in five volumes, each illustrated with five photographs taken by Clifton Johnson. The edition is identical with the larger one; it has Mr. Johnson's excellent introductions and shows the same large type and wide spacing that is very attractive to the eye. The compression is obtained by the use of thin paper and by abridging the margins somewhat.

A Pastime That Improves the Child Mind

The "Little Schoolmaster" GRAPHOPRINTS do not interfere with any practice in vogue in the schools of the present day. On the contrary, they serve as an "Aid" or "Help" to the child and are designed as a pastime that brightens and broadens the mind of the young.

INTERNATIONAL ENCYCLOPÆDIA. THE NEW. Second Edition 1916. Edited by FRANK MOORE COLBY, M.A., and TALCOTT WILLIAMS, LL.D., L.H.D., Litt.D. Assisted by nearly 500 editors and contributors.

The new Second Edition now ready contains all the excellent features which at once made the first edition a Standard Authority in libraries and educational institutions throughout the country. To gain quick and reliable information regarding the work, there is no better way than to ask the librarian of your public library. He will tell you that while the first edition was more widely used than any other reference work, the Second Edition is in still greater demand. This edition is much more than a mere revision. It is practically a new work, for every article has been critically examined and enlarged when necessary or replaced by an entirely new article. The whole work has been reset from first to last, the page made somewhat larger, the number of volumes increased from 21 to 24 (including the Courses of Reading and Study) and printed from new plates on thin paper—not too thin, but making the volume easy to handle and to leaf, and although twenty per cent. of material has been added, the shelf-space occupied has been much reduced. The work contains about 80,000 articles (30,000 more than any other encyclopædia); there are 100 full-page color plates, 250 half-tone photographic reproductions, 450 duotints, making in all about 7,500 separate illustrations, besides about 20,000 text-cuts, charts and diagrams. The work is brought down to the closing months of 1916 and thus covers the new knowledge in which the past decade has been so fruitful. It also includes a 75-page article on the "War in Europe." The New International will be supplied either on regular paper or on special thin paper. Sold by subscription only. For particulars address our Subscription Department.

INTERNATIONAL YEAR BOOK, THE NEW.

A compendium of the world's progress in every department of human knowledge A special volume published in May of each year, beginning with 1907. For full particulars address Subscription Department.

MORRIS, A. T., and CARTON MOOREPARK

OLD FRIENDS AND NEW FABLES

The fables in which animals are the chief actors have never lost their savor. Other forms of literature have their brief periods of popularity, but the fable is evidently for all time. Perhaps it is the children themselves who have conferred this immortality upon the fable. They never grow tired of stories the characters in which consist of their old friends in the animal kingdom. That experienced and sympathetic writer, Alice Talwin Morris, has written a delightful set of new fables, which have been illustrated by Carton Moorepark, who may be said to have an international reputation for his treatment of animal and nature studies. This large book with its mounted colored illustrations and its interesting animal stories will appeal to children of all ages. Illustrated with 24 fully colored plates of animals by Carton Moorepark.

NEWMAN, CARDINAL

THE DREAM OF GERONTIUS

This is one of the most unique and original poems of the past century. Mr. Hutton, late editor of The Spectator, said: "It touches all the beliefs and hopes which had been the mainstay of Newman's life." One writer says: "It is a poem every man should know by heart."

RANDALL, JOHN HERMAN

THE ESSENCE OF DEMOCRACY

Democracy is the great word of the hour. Never before has this great word dominated so largely the world's thinking. When President Wilson set forth his reasons for the entrance of the United States into the world's greatest conflict, summing it all up in that new classic phrase "to make the world safe for Democracy," he established it forever as the practical ideal for human striving the whole world round.

Dr. Randall here sets forth that Democracy will be glorious or inglorious according to the content we put in the great word; if it means nothing more than the politicians say it means then it is a futile thing. In his usual convincing manner he shows that real Democracy is a thing of the inner life, and must not only be a belief, but an experience.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF POWER OR WHAT TO LIVE FOR

The demand of the 20th century is not so much for new beliefs as for actual knowledge. While there will always be a place in human life for speculative thought and as long as one thinks at all for one's self, he must formulate some philosophy of life, still what every man must live by is the knowledge born out of actual experience. With the crumbling of the old traditional creeds, there will continue to come ever new and fresh restatements of the basic truths of life. But the need of the hour is for a formulation of the practical principles which everyday experience has demonstrated to be most effective in bringing life to the fullness of all its latent powers.

In his new book, "The Philosophy of Power," Dr. Randall attempts such a formulation of principles, apart from all doctrinal questions of speculative interest. It might be regarded as the Creed of the practical man who cares little about theology or dogma, and yet who is conscious of a need of some practical working philosophy for life.

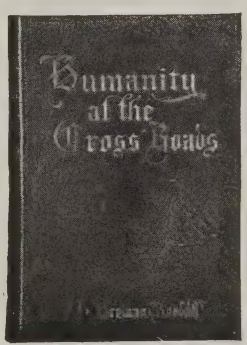
RANDALL—(Continued)

THE LIFE OF REALITY

In these days of great personal perplexities, and gigantic world-problems, every thoughtful man and woman is earnestly bent upon the search for reality. Out of the din of conflicting voices, out of the chaotic confusion of clashing opinions, one question emerges supreme over all. Amid all the deceptive appearances of life and in spite of life's disillusionments, is there such a thing as Reality, to which our human gropings may lead? Can it be found and experienced in the daily storm and stress of life, and if so, what is the pathway by which man may approach and live "the life that is life indeed"?

Dr. Randall firmly believes that such a real life is possible to every man, and in the chapters of this book he seeks to point out the sources and nature of that Reality for which, since the world began, every soul has been searching either consciously or unconsciously, the various paths of experience through which one moves toward the great discovery, and the resulting freedom and power in the life of the individual, who has attained the soul's supreme quest.

5¼ x 7½. Cloth, $1.50 Net



HUMANITY AT THE CROSS-ROADS

The writer believes that the true ideals of any people grow out of its actual philosophy of life and its conception of religion. Organized religion to-day has failed to grasp the significance of the new truth and seems powerless to furnish the vital forms of expression through which the resurging life shall find adequate and living manifestation. Can religion regain its lost leadership and give to the world the great ethical and spiritual dynamic demanded in the new age now dawning?

ARMANDE. By Edmond and Jules de Goncourt. Translated by Alfred E. Haserick and with an introduction by W. D. Orcutt.

Of the Brothers Goncourt, Victor Hugo says, "Charming writers, two minds from which spring a single jet of genius." Armande is their masterpiece.

A tale of an Indian maiden, charmingly written by one who in the old colonial days traversed the solitary wilds of North America, and who is a lover of nature and Indian lore.

BALLAD OF READING GAOL. By Oscar Wilde.

Only when neglected and despised, ill and miserable, did sincere feeling bring forth in Oscar Wilde his one great poem, "The Ballad of Reading Gaol;" the utter hopelessness of the condemned felon is communicated to the reader's mind in all its gruesome intensity.

BEAUTIES OF NATURE. By Sir John Lubbock.

An inspiring essay on the blessings of life and the beautiful world in which we live, to which are added strong essays on The Troubles of Life, Labor and Rest, Religion, The Hope of Progress, etc.

CHRISTMAS CAROL. By Chas. Dickens.

This familiar story possesses perennial interest for young and old. Whether regarded as a ghost story, a character study, or a parable, the "Christmas Carol" is one of the most brilliant tales in English literature.

CORSAIR AND LARA. By Lord Byron. With an introduction by M. F. Sweetser.

The extraordinary interest at the present time in Byron demands that two of his complete works be presented in this series. No better understanding of this "wild child of nature" can be obtained than in Corsair and Lara.

COURTSHIP OF MILES STANDISH. By Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

The incident on which the story of The Courtship of Miles Standish is based was a tradition in the family of the author and is a good portrayal of early colonial life.

DESTRUCTION OF POMPEII. By Pliny and Bulwer.

Two interesting descriptions of the Destruction of Pompeii: one by Pliny, the greatest scientist of the ancient world, who wrote as an eye-witness; the other the well-known and thrilling account from Lord Lytton's "Last Days of Pompeii."

DISCOURSES OF EPICTETUS. Selections.

In Sir John Lubbock's "List of the One Hundred Best Books," the Bible is first, the "Thoughts of Marcus Aurelius" second, and "Epictetus" third.

DUTY OF HAPPINESS AND OTHER ESSAYS. By Sir John Lubbock.

Thoughts and quotations in which this renowned philosopher has taken the most comfort in times of depressed spirits, hoping in reprinting the substances of them that they may be of use to others also.

ELEGY AND OTHER POEMS. By Thomas Gray.

The "Elegy in a Country Churchyard" occupies as secure a place among English classics as "Hamlet" or "Paradise Lost," but some readers may not realize that several poems by Gray are equally perfect and impressive. This collection contains all of Gray's verse which is really worth knowing.

ENOCH ARDEN. By Alfred, Lord Tennyson.

In "Enoch Arden" we have one of the most beautiful and pathetic poems in the English language. Had Tennyson never written another line, he would have gone down in history as one of the greatest poets of his time.

EVANGELINE. By Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

The purity, sweetness and refinement with which Longfellow delineates the affections of the heart make his poetry the most welcome of visitants at the domestic fireside, and of all his poems, "Evangeline" is probably the most popular.

FRIENDSHIP AND LOVE. By Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Mr. Emerson is no bookish theorist. He does not draw his conclusions from syllogisms, but from his personal observations of men and things. The essays on Friendship and Love, two of his most human, being subjects akin to each other, are published together as a single volume.

GOLD BUG. By Edgar Allan Poe. With a biographical sketch of the author.

A story of great effect and absorbing interest, one of those rare books that once opened is not closed until the last paragraph is finished.

GOLDEN THOUGHTS. By Fenelon.

Judiciously made extracts from the letters of the great archbishop. Fenelon united in his personality the sweetness of the saint with the strength of the reformer, and his personal correspondence contains the very heart and soul of religious devotion.

GOLDEN WINGS. A Prose Romance and a Poem. By William Morris.

Two early productions of Morris's with the same title. The Prose Romance, written in 1856, while still a student at Oxford, and the Poem, two years later, both of which show the irresistible and quaint charm apparent in all the later writings of this architect, painter, designer, craftsman, socialist and author—who, on the death of Tennyson, was thought by many would be the next Poet Laureate.

HEROISM AND CHARACTER. By Ralph Waldo Emerson.

As Friendship and Love are linked, so Heroism and Character are complementary. In fact, we perceive a strong connection between the four subjects.

HOLY GRAIL. By Alfred, Lord Tennyson.

This idyl, which must rank as one of the greatest of Tennyson's poetical achievements, came to him suddenly, "as if by a breath of inspiration."

JULIET AND ROMEO. From the Italian of Luigi Da Porto. With an introductory essay by Dr. W. J. Rolfe.

A translation of the original story from which Shakespeare conceived the plot of "Romeo and Juliet." This edition is edited by Dr. W. J. Rolfe, the greatest living authority on Shakespeare.

KING OF THE GOLDEN RIVER. By John Ruskin.

"The King of the Golden River" was written in 1841, at the request of a very young lady, and solely for her amusement, without any idea of publication. Later, with the passive assent of Ruskin, the charming allegory was publicly printed, and literature is thereby the gainer of this most pleasing little work.

L'ARLESIENNE. By Alphonse Daudet. With a biographical sketch by M. F. Sweetser.

L'Arlesienne is the best of Daudet's dramas, and is responsible for his fame as a playwright as well as a novelist.

LADY MONTAGU. Selected Letters.

Lady Mary Montagu, who lived from 1690 to 1762, derived her marvellous literary talents from her relationship to Henry Fielding, the novelist, and Sir John Evelyn, the diarist.

LEAVES OF GRASS. Selections. By Walt Whitman.

Walt Whitman is looked upon as the one distinctive American poet, the product of our New World democracy. Though perhaps lacking in grace, his poems are inspired by his enthusiasm and humanitarianism, and in every line the reader sees the personality of the poet—noble, generous and lofty—a great man in the highest sense of the word.

LETTERS TO A YOUNG MAN ABOUT TOWN. By William Makepeace Thackeray.

These charming but comparatively little known essays originally appeared in Punch, and, until the present edition, have been reissued in a volume by themselves but once, and then in a privately printed book now extremely rare. In his humorous and satirical manner, Thackeray shows up the follies and life of a young man about town in the middle of the nineteenth century.

LITTLE BOOK OF EASTERN WISDOM. Collected by Rev. Claude Field, M.A.

A notable collection of epigrams, quotations, etc., from the immortal philosophers and sages of ancient times.

LORD CHESTERFIELD'S LETTERS. Selections.

These letters of sound counsel and practical advice, addressed to his son, Philip, are what Lord Chesterfield's reputation rests upon, and it is through these that the name of Chesterfield has become symbolic of culture and refinement.

LOVE LETTERS OF A VIOLINIST. By Eric Mackay.

Originally published in England, with the name of the author suppressed, these charming love sonnets created much discussion as to authorship, some even claiming they were the work of Swinburne—from whom only it seemed could originate the fertility of thought, grace of language, ingenuity, skill in the ars poetica, wealth of words, and classic resources.

MANON LESCAUT. Vol. I. By L'Abbé Prévost. With an introduction by M. F. Sweetser.

MANON LESCAUT. Vol. II.

Not only in French, but in the emotional literature of our world has Manon Lescaut taken a classical place, and is a profound lesson drawn from weakness of human nature.

MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY. By Edward Everett Hale.

Written to foster patriotism during the Civil War, "The Man Without a Country" still holds to-day as large a claim as ever on the English-reading public.

MEN AND WOMEN. By Robert Browning.

Browning is known the world over for his deep-veined humanity and rare faculty of dramatic representation. These poems have as much red blood in them as the dramas of Shakespeare. The present volume contains all the principal favorites which have sung themselves into the memory of every reader who loves vigorous, manly poetry.

MILTON. By Lord Macaulay.

A profound and masterly essay on the leader of English literature of the seventeenth century by the leading literary critic of the nineteenth century.

NAPOLEON ADDRESSES AND ANECDOTES.

Napoleon was not only a consummate genius as general and ruler, he was also a man of extraordinary personality. So much of his magnetism and personal charm is preserved in these anecdotes and speeches that we become completely en rapport with the great emperor and cannot fail to share the enthusiasm of his contemporaries.

REMARQUE—(Continued)

OLD CHRISTMAS. By Washington Irving.

An ideal picture of an old-fashioned Christmas in rural England. The good old customs, and the quaint games handed down from generation to generation, are pictured in a most interesting manner.

PASSION IN THE DESERT, AND AN EPISODE IN THE REIGN OF TERROR. Selected Prose Works of Honore de Balzac.

Balzac is thought by many competent authorities to be the greatest novelist of the world. His short stories are quite as remarkable in their way as his longer stories, and the very best of them are to be found in the present collection.

PAUL AND VIRGINIA. By Bernardin de St. Pierre. With a biographical sketch of the author.

One of the most beautiful works in romantic literature, a production which gave St. Pierre everlasting fame.

This fantastic tale has attained world-wide fame. Founded on the old superstition that the devil could take a man's shadow, poor Peter is driven from town to town and wanders over the whole world. To the young this story appeals as a fairy-tale, but for others it has a deep ethical significance.

POEMS OF SENTIMENT. By Byron.

Probably no poet in the English-speaking world has ever held as high and well recognized a position as a "sentimentalist" as George Gordon, Lord Byron. His master lyrics dealing with the subject of love, consisting principally of his shorter poems, have been selected and edited with the greatest care for this edition.

POOR RICHARD'S ALMANAC. By Benjamin Franklin.

A selection of the best sayings from the numerous issues of "Poor Richard." Helpful and inspiring; the work of a most practical mind, written for a most practical nation.

RAB AND HIS FRIENDS. By Dr. John Brown.

"Rab and His Friends," a story of a mastiff, full of beauty and pathos. In this volume the story of Marjorie Fleming, an interesting case of remarkable precociousness, is also published.

RECESSIONAL AND OTHER VERSES. By Rudyard Kipling.

Including all of the Departmental Ditties.

RIP VAN WINKLE AND THE LEGEND OF SLEEPY HOLLOW. By Washington Irving.

These immortal stories of Dutch life in colonial New York are the best pieces of writing that Mr. Irving contributed to literature. The pathos, quaintness, and wit are impressed upon the reader in a striking way.

ROCHEFOUCAULD'S MAXIMS.

These maxims, written by a cavalier of Richelieu's time, one who knew the world as few have an opportunity of knowing it, are witty, subtle and true. The author has grasped the whole of life, and weakness of human nature, of fashion and conventionalities are strongly depicted.

RUBAIYAT OF OMAR KHAYYAM.

The "Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam" is one of the greatest contributions that the East has given to literature. The subtle thought, the soft Oriental imagery, and the delicacy of the poetry will appeal to the poetic imagination of all ages.

SALOME. By Oscar Wilde.

Originally published in French, "Salome" was translated into English the following year, and since then translations have appeared in Spanish, Swedish, German, Polish and Russian, showing the truth of the German statement that to-day Oscar Wilde is a "World's Poet" and "Salome" a "World's Play."

SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL. By Sheridan.

Sheridan's comedies are second only to Shakespeare's. "The School for Scandal" undoubtedly his masterpiece, has had an undiminished popularity from the moment it was published to the present day.

SELECTED POEMS. By John Boyle O'Reilly.

Through several causes, but not lack of merit, Boyle O'Reilly is fast becoming merely a name to the generation of to-day. Therefore, pains have here been taken to perpetuate the choicest productions of his pen—poems worthy of rank with the masterpieces of English literature.

SIR ROGER DE COVERLEY PAPERS. By Addison.

The famous "Sir Roger de Coverley Papers" are not only treasured by all students of English literature, but by historians as well. For nowhere do we find a finer description of English life in the eighteenth century than in these papers. Furthermore, in the character of Sir Roger we find the finest delineation in English literature of an ideal gentleman.

SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER. By Oliver Goldsmith.

"She Stoops to Conquer" is a comedy abounding in the keenest wit and satire. Human nature is depicted by a masterly observer, and the characters of the play are true to life.

SKETCHES OF YOUNG COUPLES. By Charles Dickens.

Some of the earlier sketches of the immortal Dickens, in which, however, are seen the clear and wonderful characterizations unequaled by any other modern author, and even unsurpassed in his later and better known works. His people live before you.

SNOW-BOUND. By John Greenleaf Whittier.

"'Snow-bound' may fairly be said to sum up Whittier's personal experience, and yet so absolutely free is it from egotism that it has taken its place as the representative poem of New England country life.

SOME FRUITS OF SOLITUDE. Reflections and Maxims. By William Penn.

"To quote a book like this were impossible; at least one can hand it on, with a wrench, one to another. Some of the 'Fruits' are sounder, juicier, and grown against a sunnier wall of experience than others, but all are delicate, and the little basket which holds them will be found in all times and places a peaceful and sweet companion."—Robert Louis Stevenson.

SONNETS FROM THE PORTUGUESE. By Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

In the "Sonnets from the Portuguese," a most exquisite series of love poems, we have Mrs. Browning at her best, and in sentiment and lofty rhyme she is at times truly Shakespearian.

SWEETNESS AND LIGHT. By Matthew Arnold.

An epoch-making essay, by one of the most cultured, practical and inspiring minds of our century.

REMARQUE—(Continued)

Containing some of the best of his shorter poems, the first part of which was brought out in 1863, and which met with immediate success.

THOUGHTS OF MARCUS AURELIUS. Selections.

Marcus Aurelius was the purest and loftiest of the pagan philosophers. "His great work, 'The Thoughts,'" says Lecky, "not only forms one of the most impressive, but also forms one of the truest books in the whole range of religious literature."

UNDINE. By Baron Friedrich de la Motte-Fouque.

The charming and graceful narrative, Undine, is a gem in German literature. It breathes of the fresh fragrance of the woods, and is animated by beautiful thoughts that people the sea and air with nymphs and spirits.

THE VALUE OF TIME AND OTHER ESSAYS. By Sir John Lubbock.

Further maxims and conclusions of a great and wise optimist as well as a thoroughly modern thinker and teacher. In style and matter they deserve an equal place among the productions of the great classic writers.

VAMPIRE AND OTHER VERSES. By Rudyard Kipling.

Including all of the Barrack Room Ballads.

VIRGINIBUS PUERISQUE. By Robert Louis Stevenson.

It is refreshing to find a work for boys and girls written by a man of genius, "Virginibus Puerisque" stands high among Mr. Stevenson's writings, and is enjoyed by both old and young.

VISION OF SIR LAUNFAL. By James Russell Lowell.

This great poem is drawn from the famous romance of King Arthur and the Holy Grail, a theme which has furnished inspiration to so many great minds. The "Vision of Sir Launfal" is the best of Lowell's shorter poems.

To appreciate the romantic and sentimental nature of the mighty Goethe one must read Werther. Though o'ershadowed by the author's other works, yet Werther alone would have made him immortal.

REMARQUE—(Continued)

WILL O' THE MILL AND BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH. By R. L. Stevenson.

This little parable of a life contains a wonderful moral and is also an irresistibly fascinating story in itself, written in the most exquisite English. Many critics think it Stevenson's masterpiece.

WIT AND WISDOM. By Sidney Smith.

Extracts from Smith's writing and conversations which flash with repartee, good-tempered satire, and wit. The comments on America and Americans are alone worth the price of the little book.

One day she meets, as she thinks, with the lady of the wishing stone, and asks her "to bring Daddy back, and to give her a magic carpet to take her everywhere, and a large family to play with." SYMON, J. D., and S. L. BENSUSAN
RENAISSANCE AND ITS MAKERS, THE

The purpose of this book is to lay before the general reader the main tendencies of the epoch that laid the foundation of modern life and thought. It also serves as a guide to the best of the vast literature of the subject.

The Renaissance movement in Italy is traced to its source and the consequent progress throughout Europe is set out in the historical order. The story is not confined to the Revival of Learning, but embraces its influence on Art, Philosophy, Social Life and Character. An effort has been made to focus in easy narrative the transition from Mediævalism to Modernism, and give a succinct account of the Fourteenth Century Revolution and its consequences for succeeding generations. Beginning with St. Francis of Assisi, the story ends with Francis Bacon. The method is episodic. We see the qualified Renaissance premonition in Dante, the last great Mediævalist; we observe the new spirit active in Petrarch, the first great modern, and in his pupil, Boccaccio. We follow the Renaissance beyond the Alps, into Germany, where Renaissance becomes Reformation; into the France of Rabelais, the Spain of Cervantes, the England of Sir Thomas Moore.

The book is copiously and beautifully illustrated in color and black and white.

THE ENGLISH YEAR

"The English Year" is an endeavor to present by word and picture the meaning and savor of the months and seasons. Wind and rain and frost; birds and beasts and insects; grasses and mosses and trees; the stars, even the accidents of our almanacs, combine to give each month a very distinct character. Without in any way attempting to exhaust the category, the authors have described under each month what is most characteristic.

The series of beautiful plates from some of the choicest efforts of living English artists, combined with Mr. Seaby's delightful drawings (nearly 200 in number), go to make these volumes undoubtedly the most charming nature books ever published.

IRWIN, INEZ HAYNES
THE CALIFORNIACS
"The Californiac is unable to talk about anything but California, except when he interrupts himself to knock every other place on the face of the earth. He looks with pity on anybody born outside of California, and he believes that no one who has ever seen California willingly lives elsewhere. He himself often lives elsewhere, but he never admits it is from choice. He refers to California always as 'God's Country,' and if you permit him to start his God's country line of talk it is all up with intelligent conversation for the rest of the day."

The Essence of Democracy

Democracy is the great word of the hour. Never before has this great word dominated so largely the world's thinking. When President Wilson set forth his reasons for the entrance of the United States into the world's greatest conflict, summing it all up in that new classic phrase "to make the world safe for Democracy" he established it forever as the practical ideal for human striving the whole world round.

Dr. Randall here sets forth that Democracy will be glorious or inglorious according to the content we put in the great word: if it means nothing more than the politicians say it means, then it is a futile thing. In his usual convincing manner he shows that real Democracy is a thing of the inner life, and must not only be a belief, but an experience.

FATHER DUFFY'S STORY

A Tale of Humor and Heroism, of Life and Death, with the Fighting Sixty-ninth.

With an Historical Appendix by Joyce Kilmer. 12mo, Net, $2.00

Since the return of the 165th, the old "Fighting Sixty-ninth" of New York, Father Duffy has been a national figure. Lionized by New York, the fame of this Chaplain who went over the top with his men has gone abroad in the land.

This book is not merely the story of a regiment or a Division. It is a glimpse into the hearts and souls of America's finest manhood. Father Duffy knew and loved his men and they would have died with him and for him.

From the moment of its call to arms, Father Duffy follows the story of the Sixty-ninth, from Camp Mills to the fields of France. His pages bristle with names, with humorous stories, with heroic deeds. It is a book of the living and of the dead, a record which is likely to remain the most moving, the most brilliant padre's story of the war.

The book closes with an historical appendix by Joyce Kilmer and complete lists of Citations and Engagements. Father Duffy was awarded the Croix de Guerre by the French Government, and both the Distinguished Service Cross and the Distinguished Service Medal by our own Republic.

By W. H. HUDSON

Author of "Green Mansions," "The Purple Land That England Lost," "Idle Days in Patagonia," etc., etc.

THE BOOK OF A NATURALIST

8vo, Net, $3.00

The American reading public is rapidly atoning for its tardy recognition of the surprising genius of W. H. Hudson. Edition after edition of the matchless books of this author-naturalist have been absorbed and the demand shows no hint of slackening. The fact is that W. H. Hudson, like such American nature writers as John Burroughs and Theodore Roosevelt, has taken a high and permanent place in our literary Arcanum. "The Book of A Naturalist" is one of the most delightful of all the charming works bearing the name of the hero of "Far Away and Long Ago." The thousands who have exclaimed in delight over the reading of "Green Mansions," "The Purple Land That England Lost," "Idle Days In Patagonia," etc., etc., will find an equally full measure of joy awaiting them in "The Book of a Naturalist."

By JOSEPH CUMMINGS CHASE

SOLDIERS ALL

Illustrated. 4to, $6.00

Doughboys and Generals—"SOLDIERS ALL"—mix with becoming democracy in this representative collection of distinguished fighters of the A. E. F.

Joseph Cummings Chase went to France by special permission of the War Department and of General Pershing to make portraits of commanding officers and selected men. Accompanying each picture is the record and autograph of the man who sat for it. The pictures are in the best manner of one of the most distinguished portrait painters of America. As a beautiful and historical collection the book has unique value, being the only adequate volume of this kind available to the patriotic collector of the War's greatest records.

By the Author of "I ACCUSE"

THE CRIME—(Volumes III and IV)

8vo, Net, $2.50 each

Following his arraignment of the Central Powers, and his rebuttal of their statements in reply, Dr. Richard Grelling has continued his examination of the documents issued by the various governments in regard to war aims and territorial questions.

In Volume III are collected the utterances of English, French and American statesmen, who, from the beginning of the War until today have proclaimed that the most important war aim of the allied nations is the formation of a league of nations to secure the establishment and enduring maintenance of the peace of the World. It upholds and verifies all previous revelations as to the antecedents of the world war, and supports, as far as argument may, the contention that it was Prussian in origin, born of the love of war which was the special tendency of Prussianized Germany, a deed woven in moral darkness.

Volume IV discusses the Belgian state papers which the Germans captured in Brussels and published in distorted and falsified form under the name of "Belgian Documents, 1905-14," thereby disclosing evidence apparently damaging to Belgium and the Allies. Written with painstaking attention to the minutest details of the evidence, the four volumes of "The Crime" are certain to become an authentic source for corroborating the history of the war, and as such, a valuable series to be kept and consulted.

(TITLE AND PRICE TO BE ANNOUNCED LATER)

CARDINAL MERCIER

No figure, statesman, ruler or general emerges from the European war with such world-wide renown and affection as Cardinal Mercier. The man who was "the equal of a Prussian division," in Berlin reekoning; who was threatened, virtually imprisoned, insulted by German commanders and war governors; but who was never silenced, who wrote his pastoral letters to his spiritual children undismayed by German hatred and fury; and who bade Belgium—and through her the whole Allied world—lift up its heart and bide its time; this man now tells the story of the years of agony, a tale that will live for all time.

No other book to come out of Europe has such a tremendous appeal for America as this work by Cardinal Mercier. It is one of the truly great and passionately moving documents of the generation in which we live. To read it is to know the soul of a noble and heroic man and to look into the heart of a people who bore with the invader for four weary years without ever losing hope and faith.

By PHILIP GIBBS

Author of "The Struggle in Flanders," "The Battles of the Somme," "The Soul of the War," etc.

THE WAY TO VICTORY: In Two Volumes

Vol. I The Menace.
Vol. II The Repulse. Maps and diagrams. Octavo. Net, $5.00

The most widely read writer on the war, Philip Gibbs, correspondent with the British Army in the field for the London Daily Chronicle and whose vivid, colorful dispatches were a standard feature of the New York Times, here completes the great trilogy that has brought home the world conflict with living force to those who were not serving with the colors. These two volumes—"The Menace" and "The Repulse"—take it up at the dark hour when civilization hung in the balance and with the same graphic skill that won him a world audience carry it along until that final hour of vindication and triumph—November 11, 1918!

Anyone who wishes a clarifying panoramic view of the wide sweep of later phases of the war, knit of innumerable "close-ups," cannot afford to miss these books. They picture every nook and corner of the scene; a world of strange little dramas, heroic exploits, tragic stories, humorous episodes, and historically significant things. And through it all runs that strain of human tenderness that makes Philip Gibbs a distinct individuality, in a different class from all other writers about the war.

By FREDERICK VILLIERS

Text by Phillip Gibbs

Author of "The Way to Victory," "The Struggle in Flanders," "The Battles of the Somme," etc.

WAR PICTURES

Illustrated. 4to, Net, $5.00

Frederick Villiers, whose remarkable drawings of the Western Front are presented in this volume, with the text by Phillip Gibbs, holds one of the most distinguished war records of any artist and correspondent living. He is the recipient of twelve English and foreign war medals. His service in the field included work with the Russians in Turkey in 1877; at the coronation of Czar Alexander III in Moscow, 1883; on the Nile during the relief of Khartoum; in Bulgaria during the Serbian invasion; across Canada and throughout the United States on lecture tours; a correspondent for British and American papers in the Japanese war; at the taking of Fort Arthur; and numerous other far-flung activities. He used the cinematograph camera for the first time in the history of war journalism and was also the first correspondent to make use of the bicycle.

Prior to the Great War he held numerous exhibitions of his paintings in London and America, and after the German invasion of Belgium he went to France where he spent more than a year in the front-line trenches.

The combination of Philip Gibbs and Frederick Villiers is a very happy one for the reason that both men are intimately acquainted with the Allied front in France, and Mr. Gibbs writes in this volume as one who has been over the same ground that Mr. Villiers presents so graphically in his pictures. These drawings are remarkable for the fact that they preserve in the greatest detail the exact characteristics of warfare on the French front —all those minute and speaking objects which are visible only to the artist who has lived the life himself. Anyone who wants a vivid and true presentation of warefare as it was actually waged by the Allies can find it nowhere so remarkably reproduced as in this unequalled combination of greatest war artist and great war correspondent.

By SIR ARTHUR PEARSON, Bart., C.B.E.

Founder and Director of St. Dunstan's Hostel for Blinded Soldiers and Sailors

VICTORY OVER BLINDNESS

Illustrated. 12mo. Net, $1.50

Founder and proprietor of a number of England's great newspapers, Sir Arthur Pearson relinquished active control of his great enterprises only when overtaken by blindness some few years ago. While retaining the chairmanship of C. Arthur Pearson, Limited, the holding company controlling various other companies, Sir Arthur has applied his genius and energy to the alleviation of his fellow-sufferers. Literally he has restored sight, or the equivalent of sight, to many thousands who arise and call him blessed. This book is the romantic story of Sir Arthur's work of restoration to happy usefulness of those in all walks of life who have been bereft of the blessing of sight. An inspiring, ennobling record.

THE GRAND FLEET, 1914-1916

With Illustrations, Maps and Diagrams. Large Octavo. Net, $6.00

Here is a book the world has been waiting for. England's fleet, "the bulwark of the British Isles and the watchdog of the seas," has been more or less of a mystery during the Great War. We read occasionally of naval engagements, of this or that battleship being torpedoed, of a harbor being blockaded, but over the operations of THE GRAND FLEET there hung a cloud of secrecy that only the signing of the armistice could dissipate. At last that cloud has lifted and now we have the marvelous record of its creation, development and work during two long heartbreaking years, written by the one person who is best qualified to tell the matchless story—its Commander.

Such chapters as "The Submarine and Mine Menace in the North Sea," "The Dogger Bank Action," "Controlling the North Sea," "Attempts to Entice the Enemy Into Action," "The Battle of Jutland," and "The Submarine Peril to Merchant Shipping," give a fair idea of the scope of this monumental work. It is beautifully illustrated with unusual photographs and contains plans and diagrams that enable the reader to follow the narrative with a clear understanding of its context.

By MAJOR GENERAL SIR F. MAURICE

FORTY DAYS IN 1914

Maps and Diagrams. Octavo. Net, $2.00

Why did not the all powerful German Army with forty years of preparation drive through to Paris, its boasted objective, in the first great offensive of the war? Many people have puzzled over this problem and failed to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion.

Here is a book that answers this question and answers it conclusively and with authority. Major General Maurice, England's leading military critic, who was in command of a division at the time of the retreat from Mons and the first Battle of the Marne, tells for the first time just why the Hun failed and how his carefully laid plans were completely frustrated by the combined British and French armies.

You will want to read this gripping story of that great moment when Joffre said: "The time has come to stand fast," and after you have finished you will understand why the French and English have a catch in their breath when they speak of the "miracle of the Marne."

By SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

A HISTORY OF THE GREAT WAR—Volume IV

The British Campaign in France and Flanders, 1917

Maps. Octavo. Net, $2.50

This the fourth volume of Conan Doyle's monumental and dramatic record of the great war carries the story through the long and arduous fighting of 1917 which ended in the memorable twofold battle of Cambrai. These tremendous events will always stand out in history as portentous, marking as they do the never to be forgotten period when the Allies gained a definite military ascendency over the German Forces.

Arras, Messines, Ypres and Cambrai constitute an Epic period in the great conflict. The distinguished author, with special privileges from the censorship, has given us an accurate and detailed record of the colossal movements and engagements which characterized this fateful time. It is an important fact to remember that the detailed battle lines are recorded in this great history, for the first time. In comparing this account as it has appeared in the preceding volumes, with the official records, not a brigade has ever been found out of place. As might be expected Sir Arthur Conan Doyle has given us very much more than a merely accurate historical record. His narrative is infused with life and reality so that the reader sees enacted in panoramic reality before him the scenes of this momentous period of the great conflict.

By ALEC WAUGH

Author of "The Loom of Youth"

THE PRISONERS OF MAINZ

12mo, Net, $1.00

Alec Waugh, whose recent novel "The Loom of Youth" promises a brilliant literary career, tells the experiences of a group of officers imprisoned at Mainz from the time of the spring drive of 1918 up to the signing of the armistice.

With humor and skill Mr. Waugh presents any number of delightful personalities whose shrewd literary criticisms and opinions on contemporary affairs are worth considering.

It is in such books as this that the great significance of the war is brought out. The critic who said in The New Witness when "The Loom of Youth" was published, "I look forward confidently to see him come to grips with the army as thoroughly as he has done with the schools," has been justified in his expectations of fine work from this young novelist.

"Alec Waugh is a young man to be thankful for—now only just twenty, he produces the most amusing war book I have read and certainly the most intelligent. To read a book like this is sheer delight."—London Daily Mail.

By MAURICE FRANCIS EGAN

Former U. S. Minister to the Court of Denmark

TEN YEARS NEAR THE GERMAN FRONTIER

Illustrated. Octavo. Net, $3.00

Mr. Egan, for ten years our Minister Plenipotentiary to Denmark, had a decade of the most fascinating experiences in "the listening gallery of Europe," the Copenhagen Court, which is nearer to Potsdam than New York to Boston. He watched the growth of Prussian insolence, the movements of Berlin in a world-wide web of propaganda, and he was behind the scenes of a drama which can hardly be matched for color, for political ambition, and for intense interest for every American.

Mr. Egan tells here for the first time the full story of our purchase of the Virgin Islands, for which he was mainly responsible, and of Germany's efforts to block the plan. This book will rank as one of the notable contributions to the history of international relations. Mr. Egan's very wide interests and his intimate acquaintance with diplomatic rulers make his pages a record of extraordinary value and charm.

Speaking of his retirement, the Scandinavian Trade Outlook said recently: "A cautious and skilled diplomatist, Dr. Egan's ten years at the Danish post enabled him to understand the people among whom he had been placed as few American representatives abroad have ever entered into the life of the respective nations. He interpreted America to the Danes, just as he never tired telling American audiences how much that little country has done to advance agriculture to the point of an exact science. Whenever it was a question of deciding between right and wrong, Dr. Egan's attitude was one that brought American fair play into the foreground."

By SAMUEL GOMPERS

President of the American Federation of Labor

AMERICAN LABOR AND THE WAR

12mo. Net, $1.75

What attitude has Labor taken in the War? Where has the great body of working-men and women stood in relation to the vital issues? Mr. Gompers sets forth clearly and with unquestioned authority the facts in case and one cannot read his words without feeling a great pride in the whole-hearted support which Labor gave to the Government in a time of national peril.

This book contains three historic utterances by Mr. Gompers—an address in London, one in Paris, and the third in Italy. Speaking for Labor in the United States, Mr. Gompers stood before Europe in a very real sense as the Voice of American Democracy.

The official record of the American Federation of Labor in the War, including all the vital war measures and resolutions of the Federation, are added in an appendix.

By JOSEPHUS DANIELS

Secretary of the Navy

THE NAVY AND THE NATION

With an introduction by John Wilber Jenkins

Octavo. Net, $2.00

No one can put down Secretary Daniels' book without a heightened sense of the fine spirit of co-operation which the official head of the Navy inspired in citizen and sailor alike.

The nation is whole-heartedly proud of its Navy. Its feats have never been equalled in the entire history of sea operations. Mr. Daniels was the executive head of one of the greatest naval organizations the world has known. He was the bond between the people, who could make the dream possible, and the fleet, which could make it a fact. The picture one gets in these interesting pages of the navy at work, its contacts with industry and science, its myriad activities ashore and afloat, will remain memorable both for its official character and its vivid delineation.

THE STRUGGLE IN FLANDERS. New Edition of "From Bapaume to Passchendaele"

12mo. Net, $2.50

"The Struggle in Flanders" pictures every nook and corner of the war scene.

Mr. Gibbs made his home in shell craters, dugouts, chateaux, trenches, forward dressing stations, base hospitals, aerodromes, Flemish farmhouses, pill-boxes, century-old tunnels, wine cellars, cathedrals, ruined cottages, on hilltops and in bogs, everywhere, in fact, within sound of the guns.

He was cheek by jowl with Canadians, Irish, Highlanders, Welsh, Australians, New Zealanders, Londoners and men of every shire. He met and knew the stories of brave old grandmothers, of babies born under hostile rule, of young girls shaken by the terror of their remembrances, of "movie men," air pilots, French plowmen, priests, prisoners, wounded. Each one of these diverse souls a great adventure. A world of strange little dramas, heroic exploits, tragic stories, humorous episodes and historically significant things.

A HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES

With an Introduction by Gilbert K. Chesterton

Octavo. Net, $2.50

This book is the latest fruit of that most interesting renaissance of thoughtful scrutiny of American institutions by English writers. Cecil Chesterton paid a brief visit to the United States during the war and became an ardent friend of America. Returning to England, he insisted upon active service and the words of his brother, Gilbert K. Chesterton, in this connection are interesting.

He writes: "My brother who died in France after fighting, I am glad to say, in the final victory that swept away Prussian imperialism, left behind him a little book which he finished at odd moments, even on the march, so intensely did the interest of his subject possess and pursue him." Further on he refers to it as "an illustration of a fresher and much franker version of the invaluable Anglo-American friendship."

Readers of this book will find in it a highly personal, provocative and at all times sympathetic point of view upon American affairs. It is one of the earliest and most important outcomes of a closer bond with England.

TROUPING WITH THE TROOPS

12mo. Net, $1.25

"Mayo's Stock Troupe" the soldiers called it—the company of six American actors and actresses of the Overseas League which played right behind the lines.

When the call came for volunteers to go to France to cheer the soldiers of America, many of our leading artists gladly availed themselves of this opportunity for service. Among those first to go was Margaret Mayo than whom there is no more fascinating personality. This is her own narrative of the adventures of herself and her troupe told with emotion and humor and brilliance.

Miss Mayo makes this a very real and intimate picture of the lives of soldiers and the conditions in France at the end of the war. It is a record of courage and cheer long to be cherished by those to whom Miss Mayo ministered.

The eminent author proves his right to be recognized as the acceptable and accredited spokesman for the composite moral forces of civilized peoples. His ringing messages call for renewed consecration to the cause of universal goodwill and inspire anew that unquenchable faith and hope in our common high destiny.

SHAKING HANDS WITH ENGLAND

12mo, Net, $1.00

During the summer of 1918 a group of editors from the leading publications in the United States visited England and France for the purpose of "shaking hands with England" and strengthening the bond between the mother country and the one-time colonies. Among them Charles Hanson Towne, as editor of McClure's Magazine, traveled and observed, and now writes in "Shaking Hands With England," in his own, inimitable way, of the events and the sights of that sojourn. It was not a Cook's tour with a string of tickets, that they made. It was an introduction to sights that will live in the memories of English and Americans alike—the two fleets lying side by side in the Firth of Forth, the camps of New America in the oldest parts of England—"a beautiful anachronism," and countless scenes unheralded and censored at the time, that Mr. Towne has made memorable by casting them into form of true literary worth, sometimes serious, more often humorous, always sympathetic.

With an Introduction by Sir Robert Borden

Illustrated. Octavo. Net, $5.00

Those who have been looking forward to reading in comprehensive form the full story of the thrilling part played by Canada in the war will welcome the publication of this record of magnificent heroism and accomplishment. Castell Hopkins, the author, as the one Canadian best fitted to write such a story.

SOCIAL STUDIES OF THE WAR

Octavo. Net, $1.50

Doctor Clark visualizes for us with camera-like clearness social conditions in Europe during the war, and discusses with statesman-like insight the mighty changes which are imminent. He writes with the authority bred of careful and extended investigation.

Swinging back and forth constantly through England, Ireland, Scotland, France and Italy making social surveys for the American press, visiting all the important cities, institutions, fronts and military establishments of every kind, he learned more of what went on behind the scenes of the war than perhaps any other journalist in Europe. He tells of the soldier and his conceptions from the standpoint of one who has shared with him the common experience of camp, billet and trench life.

Altogether it is a book of singular vividness and breadth of vision—a book that will give the reader an intimate "look in" on these vital and pressing problems. Our responsibility in this world crisis finds here clear and keenly suggestive definition.

THE WHITE EAGLE OF POLAND

Maps. 12mo. Net, $1.50

Almost every day brings forth in the newspapers fresh news from the one-time proud kingdom of Poland, news of seething and turmoil unintelligible to the newspaper reader at the distance of halfway about the globe. To have any comprehension of events one must have an account at once lucid and scholarly, and neither so voluminous as to bore nor so scant as not to tell the whole truth.

A free and united Poland with access to the sea is one of the conditions of a just and solid peace as formulated at the Allied Peace Table. Part I of this study has to do with the republic of Poland as the keystone in the fabric of a new and sane Mittel-Europa and as a factor at the Versailles conference. Part II tells the sorrows, greater even than those of Belgium, which Poland has suffered at the hands of her enemies.

THE GERMAN CONSPIRACY IN AMERICAN EDUCATION

12mo, Net, $1.25

It is difficult to imagine a more long-armed, cynical, and insidious plot than the German conspiracy against our education. A great many forms of Teuton propaganda have been unmasked to an astonished and indignant public, but Mr. Ohlinger's exposé of this poisoning of the national intellectual well-springs is the first and the complete story of the supreme attempt on our integrity. What was the meaning of exchange professorships in our universities? Of the "cosmopolitan" clubs fostered among our college students? Of the nation-wide favoring of German against French as the language study in our grade schools? Of the perversion of history in our relations with England? The explanation of these questions and similar disclosures are here detailed by this eminent specialist in German propaganda in the United States.

EATING IN TWO OR THREE LANGUAGES

Illustrated. 12mo, Net, $0.60

Irvin Cobb describes the condition of his appetite after months of rationing in England and France. With much delightful foolishness regarding eating in England, including a roaring account of a luncheon with the Lord Mayor of London, does he regale the amusement seeker before he turns his attention to France. Then he makes one grin with delight over the story of why a Frenchman cooked the colonel's luncheon and dinner, but a negro "got breakfast." There are no tears in this book, no character study, no problems, but there is at least one laugh in every paragraph, and in many a round baker's dozen thrown in for good measure.

THE SWORD OF DEBORAH

As the perspective of the Great War grows and the extraordinary examples of human endeavor fall into their proper relation, one thing is going to stand out mountain-high: the unheard-of, almost fabulous, labor and achievement of women.

This book tells a story which is going to be far more wonderful tomorrow than it is today or was yesterday. What English women did, what they bore and how is a page of history that will never grow dim or dull.

F. Tennyson Jesse got behind the scenes and under the surface of things and her narrative quivers with the courage, heroism and humor of the V A D's and W A A C's and other gallant women's organizations at and behind the front.

THE MUD LARKS

12mo, Net, $1.50

These rollicking sketches of army life in France which have been appearing more or less regularly in Punch for some months, have been said to have, for all their nonsense, more of the spirit of the war in them than most of the serious analytical studies of the great conflict.

Robert Cortes Holliday said when he read these essays: "Decidedly humorous stuff. Skillful, graphic, brilliant sketches of British army life, mostly in France, a bit in Italy, and just a touch of Africa. As funny, I think, as Bairnsfather. Similar type of soldier fun. A typical Punch quality. That is, not raw horseplay, but a sophisticated, literary flavor. Author is a writer by temperament who happens to be a soldier, rather than a man who gets a hunch he ought to write because he is a soldier. The humor is, I think, the richest I have seen in books of this type."

In this volume he relates his experiences as a Chaplain to the Forces behind the lines in Belgium and France. Life at the front as seen through the eyes of so keen an observer and so practised a writer takes on vivid reality and intense human interest.

MILITARY SERVITUDE AND GRANDEUR

12mo. Net, $1.50

It is a most opportune time for this translation of Alfred De Vigny's classic stories of the Grande Armée to appear. There has never been a time when military service so deeply affected the people of America, or when France and America were more closely allied.

These revelations of the sacrificial valor of the Army and the Empire epitomize the glory and the tragedy of war. The author says: "The Army is blind and dumb. It wills nothing and its action is started with a spring. It is a big thing that others control and that kills. But it is a thing that suffers, too!"

The raconteur is a gallant figure on horseback campaigning in the Napoleonic wars with the fine soldiers whose adventures he relates. This translation, in demonstrating how pure and profound are the sources of French patriotism, explains the spirit of France in the great war.

Mrs. Davis has brought together in this volume the tributes of the world to Lincoln, and in a very real sense the picture of him that grows out of this volume is a world picture, international in its authorship and immortal in its truth.

By RUDOLF JEREMIAS KREUTZE

CAPTAIN ZILLNER

Translated by W. J. Alexander Worster 12mo, Net, $1.75

With a dramatic power that makes the reader a part of the incidents he follows, the author unfolds the story of an Austrian officer. Vienna with its brilliant cafe life, the workings of the army machine, the characters of the commanders and men, the front and its ghastly blunders are all told with a frankness and convincing detail that are fearfully fascinating. The Austrian distrust of Prussia and the deepening of the gloom that descended like a pall as the thousands were slaughtered make a panorama of supreme tragedy.

As one of the first and most realistic disclosures of conditions behind the enemy lines it will be recognized as a war document of very great interest and importance.

Biography and Autobiography

By HENRY WATTERSON

MARSE HENRY

Two Volumes. Illustrated. 8vo, Net, $10.00

Henry Watterson is the last of the Titans of individual journalism. For a generation, as the editor and owner of the Louisville Courier-Journal, he has played a part in national and international affairs of the country which it would be difficult to match in his day or in any other.

This work represents the harvest-home of a life filled to the brim with interesting things. A youth in Washington before the Civil War, he grew up in a day when the nation was facing its greatest internal crisis. He stood at Lincoln's elbow when the inaugural address was spoken; he came into close personal touch with the political and military leaders of the time; and he contributed by the vigor and wide influence of his editorials to the making of American history.

This work is a mirror of the social and political life of the greater part of the 19th Century. Politicians, statesmen, society women, famous actors and actresses, journalists, musicians, generals, crowned heads, authors, artists, renowned hostelries and their proprietors, theatrical producers—all the figures of our own Vanity Fair are caught in Mr. Watterson's glass. To read these pages is to step into the 19th Century, to see behind the scenes in politics, to overhear the gossip of society, to live a period that is likely to be the most memorable and picturesque in our history.

Books like this are not made or written: they are lived. And Marse Henry's memoirs will take their place in that company of coveted volumes which successive generations of readers turn to in delight and gratitude.

The life of John Redmond is necessarily a history of Irish politics during the past generation, and this book will be found peculiarly and fittingly illuminating at a time when the whole world, especially the English-speaking world, is alive to the necessity and the wisdom of a satisfactory settlement of a question which has vexed the souls of good men for many generations.

By JEAN ROY

THE FIELDS OF THE FATHERLESS

Octavo. Net, $1.75

A servant girl flooded with flattering commissions from editors, but who doesn't mean to leave her kitchen just yet, is something a bit new under the sun. Here are the plain facts about this remarkable book:

Jean Roy's employer, a woman of literary judgment, becoming aware that her domestic servant, in the time that she had "to herself," was "writing a book," asked to see the manuscript, and, recognizing that in the girl who presided over her pots and pans dwelt the soul of something like genius, sent the manuscript to an English publisher. The story of Jean's wanderings, her experiences and her thoughts as a sweatshop worker, a laundress, waitress and domestic servant was at once published without a word being changed or "edited."

The London reviewers immediately bracketed THE FIELDS OF THE FATHERLESS with Maxim Gorky's book, "In the World." They find in it touches that remind one of Barrie's "Window in Thrums," and something of the quality of "Marie Claire." A blasé newspaper writer finds the story "far more enthralling than nine novels out of ten" and read it "avidly from first to last."

Her name for all time will stand for a type of devotion that is brave and beautiful beyond the power of words to express.

The illustrious author has told the story of this marvelously unselfish woman with sympathetic and graphic pen. No more appealing heroine came out of the great conflict. America and England join with Serbia, for whom she gave her life, in paying tribute to this ministering angel.

Its reading will prove to be an intoxicating adventure into the bewildering realm of human character. Beside this thrilling record of life's realities, the mere story of imagination becomes colorless. No experience common to man from childhood to the grand passion but finds vivid and varied portraiture here. In the distinguished company of notable diaries, journals, confessions and autobiographies, we predict that Barbellion's narrative will find a high and enduring place.

BROOME STREET STRAWS

12mo, Net, $2.00

You might think it a bit odd if you should ask a man whether he had gone to Yale, and he replied: "No, I went to Broome Street."

Yet streets, like universities, have a good deal to do with the cut of a man. Streets are, in a manner of speaking, educations. A great many people, for instance, have what can most aptly be termed a Broadway mind. There is, too, a distinctly Fifth Avenue habit of thought, a Wall Street point of view, a Bowery manner, a 125th Street cast of culture, and so on.

All the pieces in this volume do not have to do with that little-known street in New York from which it takes its name. They range, indeed, from Indiana to London, and turn from books to boarding-houses. But everywhere there is the delightful flavor, the original slant of mind of the author of "Walking-Stick Papers" which, presumably, was got while a painter in a garret,—like Anatole France, who, when he was the idlest of his life, learned the most.

Inspirational Essays on Current Topics

"Had Shakespeare been alive to-day we can easily imagine his attitude toward the war," writes Marie Corelli in one of the essays in this collection. Her attitude is typified by the conversation between Portia and Nerissa in "The Merchant of Venice":

"Nerissa: How like you the young German, the Duke of Saxony's Nephew? Portia: Very vilely in the morning when he is sober, and most vilely in the afternoon when he is drunk; when he is best, he is a little worse than a man; and when he is worst, he is little better than a beast."

A fine scorn of individual deceit and private hypocrisy has produced these essays on war and peace which are of engrossing interest and significant portent. The great body of Miss Corelli's admirers that eagerly awaits a new novel from her pen will welcome this, her first volume of essays.

By ALINE KILMER

(Mrs. Joyce Kilmer)

CANDLES THAT BURN

12mo. Net, $1.25

Aline Kilmer's poetry is delicate, lyrical and whimsical. The verses to her children are a refreshing contrast to the conventional sentiment with which they are too often surrounded.

Her poems are beautiful with the blended sunlight and shadow of old gardens, and her book is a path that leads to the fairy ring in the heart of a deep wood. The verses written after the death of little Rose, and while her husband, Joyce Kilmer, was fighting in France, are tinged with sorrow and the sadness of parting, but there is a deep undercurrent of love and prayer in her poems, redeeming even those great sorrows from tragedy.

By BERTON BRALEY

Author of "Things As They Are," "A Banjo at Armageddon," etc.

BUDDY BALLADS: Songs of the A. E. F.

12mo, Net, $1.25

Berton Braley's heroes are the everybody people who, like most of us, must work, earn their daily bread, and be thankful if after all they have had a little love and a little laughter along the way.

In this new volume of verse, as in "A Banjo at Armageddon" and "In Camp and Trench," he has presented his message from the favorite standpoint of the soldier, and when he sings the praises of soldiers he voices the psychology of wartime, as in these lines:

"What though their fame hereafter
Shall gleam in living fire?
The singer courts their laughter,
Unless he strikes his lyre
In accents syncopated
And makes the cat-gut hum
In simple music, freighted
With tunes that they can hum."

"He has a sweeping lilt all his own; he gets down deep into submerged hearts and makes them sing—makes them sing brilliantly well without losing reality."—Rupert Hughes in the Philadelphia Evening Ledger.

BANNERS

12mo. Net, $1.25

These are poems of revolution, of modern love, of young adventure. Vivid, authentic, intriguing. These verses, "Following beauty like a fiery cloud," are representative of the finest achievements of the school of younger poets.

The book is distinguished by keen thoughtfulness, brilliant imagery and sensitive rhythms. It includes poems of such enduring significance as "Banners," "The Challenger," etc.

In the simplicity of "Walls," in the lovely intricacy of "Distance," as in the succinct penetration of the sonnets, there is an original and compelling voice.

SMALL CRAFT

Miss Fox Smith has been declared by critics to be one of the few living writers who can write a real chanty, combining the mastery of sea lingo with a perfect command of sea rhythm. That, at least, is the judgment of a critic in the London Spectator.

These songs are full of the spindrift and spume and sounds of the sea. They have the motion and swing and breath of the deep waters and are as breezy, direct and full of good humor as those who go down to the sea.

By C. FOX SMITH

Author of "Small Craft"

SAILOR TOWN

12mo. Net, $1.25

"No one, not even Mr. Masefield," writes a critic in the London Spectator, "has written finer sea ballads or come closer to the heart of those who go down to the great waters."

These pages are full of the dancing colors and fresh scents of the harbor, and the rush of sea and wind, the cheery pathos of the outward-bound, the sailor's homesickness—all set forth in a rythmic song, the vividness and freshness of which has hardly been equalled by any contemporary writer.

JUDITH

A Play in Three Acts Founded on the Apocryphal Book of "Judith"

12mo, Net, $1.00

The Israelites of Bethulia, Assyrian pomp and the bizarre beauty of sunlit wall and watchtower in a beleaguered city are the background. The persons—Judith, of the Apocrypha, that decorous widow who could play the courtesan, and Ozias, the governor, type of the demagogue in office, and the mirth-producing Haggrith, Judith's maid-servant—these are the stuff of Mr. Bennett's sorcery in his latest play.

An intriguing study of character, true for all time, is staged in the gorgeous pageantry of ancient days.

"Not for many a day have we had such rich stage pictures."—London correspondent of the New York Times.

HEARTS AWAKE

12mo, Net, $1.25

There are the resonance of brass and the beat of drums as well as the wood-wind of peace in these poems by Miss Burr. It is a book of varying moods, interpretative of the life that is lived by us all. A book that is marked for its rhythmic quality, for its unaffected sense of beauty and for that vision of life which perceives the spirit beneath the clay.

"Amelia Josephine Burr has done so much beautiful work that she needs no introduction to the poetry reading public."

MERCHANTS OF THE MORNING

Poems of Life and Dreams

12mo, Net, $1.25

Mr. McCoy comes from Indiana and one of his earliest impulses to write verse came from a reading of James Whitcomb Riley, whom he afterward knew. These poems are woven of the stuff of dreams and of a very human understanding of plain folk. With all his contact with everyday things and people, however, Mr. McCoy is always the dreamer and the closing lines of his "Reveille" may well express the spirit of this book:

"Dream for the weary earth
All happy things to do—
But, when you wake this morn
O make your dream come true."

GOD'S OUTCAST: ALL CLEAR: GOD OF MY FAITH:

Three Plays: One Volume. 12mo. Net, $1.25

Throughout the period of the war the cause of freedom had no more devoted friend than the distinguished dramatist, J. Hartley Manners. His play, "Out There," with an all-star cast headed by his wife, Laurette Taylor, toured the principal cities in the interest of the Red Cross and secured contributions of approximately a million dollars. These three short plays are in the spirit of the time and reflect the deep emotions of the Allied people in time of great stress, and the high dramatic quality of their author.

THE WAY OF WONDER

With an Introduction by Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch

12mo, Net, $1.25

Poet and priestess, May Doney sings not only of womanhood but of flowers and trees and the open road.

Her work is marked by much of the forcefulness and insight of Walt Whitman's poetry. In her mystical interpretation of the joy of living, she may be ranked with him, no less than in the full-blooded beauty of her expression. He sang of the splendor of fatherhood. She sings of the great sanctity of motherhood.

E. V. Lucas, the distinguished English critic, says of her book: "Its especial mission is to express the divinity of the commonplace."

By ROBERT NORWOOD

Author of "The Modernists," "The Witch of Endor," "The Piper and the Reed," etc.

THE MAN OF KERIOTH

12mo. Net, $1.25

Mr. Norwood has amply proved himself a poet of distinction, breadth of vision, and beauty of form and diction. Under his magnetic and reverent touch this lyric drama from the life of Jesus Christ is profoundly moving and strangely modern.

Mr. Norwood is not to be daunted by the traditional conceptions of the people he portrays. He is unafraid of wide-blown beauty of phrase or of the momentum of his own power, or of the downrightness of his characters, as they were. One must felicitate this poet on the originality and the modernity which he has infused into the world's best-known drama.

THE TOWER OF LONDON FROM WITHIN

Illustrated. 8vo, Net, $4.00

To read this story of the Tower of London is to make contact with the most romantic and memorable events in English history. Built by William the Conqueror on the ruins of a Roman fortress, erected by Julius Caesar, the Tower has been the scene of a pageant of history for nine hundred years. As Maj.-Gen. Sir George Younghusband says: "The Tower of London is a noble inheritance, built with the stone of ages and watered with the blood of England's noblest sons and daughters. Sorrow and mourning bowed it low; decay and neglect laid their heavy hand upon it; till there came the day of a great Queen (Victoria) and the Tower raised her hoary head."

This record is a thing of endless fascination and one puts it down with the feeling of having read afresh the most tragic and beautiful stories in English history.

By S. H. LEEDER

Author of "Veiled Mysteries of Egypt," "The Desert Gateway," etc.

MODERN SONS OF THE PHARAOHS

Illustrated. Octavo. Net, $3.00

This study of the manners and customs of the Copts, thought by ethnologists to be descendants of the ancient Egyptians, is notable for its comprehensive and scholarly handling of the subject, for grace of style and rich descriptive backgrounds. The author has given us a living, colorful picture of present-day Egyptian life as well as an intimate review of the antecedents, religious beliefs and customs of a people peculiarly interesting because of the biblical record of their ancient progenitors and because of the remarkable survival of the early church in the Egyptian Christian body of today.

In its discussion of the aspirations of this people and their desire for certain reforms and changes, it throws much light on present disturbances in the land of the Nile. The conflicting interests of Copt and Moslem and the ruling powers are analyzed in a restrained and rational manner.

It is both a fascinating book of description and travel and an authoritative treatment of one of the important racial problems of the East.

CHRISTOPHER: A Study in Human Personality

Illustrated. 12mo. Net, $2.00

In the words of Lloyd's News, London, "Sir Oliver Lodge comes forward with a further contribution on the subject of Spiritualism which is very notable." And again the London Daily Express says: "There is comfort here for all except the skeptic."

CHRISTOPHER stands for one of the most valuable types of human personality upon which the war has levied its ruthless toll—the scholarly, artistic type, sensitive to beauty and richly endowed with emotional susceptibility.

This splendid English patrician lad, a nephew of Lady Stanley, made of the stuff of English heroes, came of age upon the field of battle when he made the supreme sacrifice.

THE VITAL MESSAGE

12mo, Net, $1.25

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle speaks with authority. Scholar, physician, writer, he has since the War been giving his whole life to this one subject: ARE THE DEAD REALLY DEAD?

He says, "I have seen father, mother and dead soldier son photographed together, with the dead son looking far the happier, and not the least substantial of the three. I have seen scores of spirit photographs exact images of the dead."

You may not agree with his conclusions but you cannot ignore them. With thousands of our soldier sons missing forever, the eternal question of life and death is poignantly important.

In "The Vital Message" the blending of two phases of existence, namely, the ascent of the material plane to the spiritual, is shown as the gate to that wonderful land which stretches so clearly before those eyes which open to see it.

Those who have found inspiration and companionship in the writings of Louis Figuer, Victor Charbonnel and Camille Flammarion will quickly recognize a kindred spirit in Leon Denis. These and other Frenchmen form a literary group which combine mystic, psychic and scientific qualities in rare degree. The ever pressing problems of human life find in Leon Denis an interpretator with unshakable faith in man's high destiny. He writes with spiritual poise and dignity, with precision and clarity of both thought and style. As translator, Mrs. Wilcox is naturally in sympathetic accord with the author. Her poetic talent is reflected in a style quite in harmony with the character of the work.

SPIRITUALISM: Its History, Phenomena and Doctrine

With an Introduction by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. Octavo. Net, $2.00

"If I were asked," says Sir Arthur Conan Doyle in his introduction to this book on Spiritualism, "to recommend a course of reading to an intelligent agnostic who knew nothing about psychic science, I should choose the five successive books in which Mr. J. Arthur Hill has exhibited the unfolding of his own mind."

The growth of Mr. Hill's remarkable intellect, and the spiritual outreaching seen in such now universally accepted and almost classic utterances as "Man is a Spirit," and psychical investigations are brought to flower in this culmination and epitome of his devout and scholarly mind.

This ample and concise résumé of the whole field of psychical science is a unique production. Antecedents of Modern Spiritualism, The Early History of Spiritualism, Psychical Phenomena, Confirmatory Evidence in India, Ghosts, Evidence, Proof and Belief are treated of first. Then follows a discussion of the aspects of Spiritualism as a Religion, Religious and Materialistic Objections, Fecliner's Theory, and the Spiritualist Conceptions of After-Death Conditions, with a Summary at the end.

WHAT IS THIS SPIRITUALISM?

Octavo. Net, $1.50

A primer of the psychic. A clear, sane discussion of the fundamentals and the religious and scientific claims of spiritualism. This introduction to the study of psychical research presupposes no previous knowledge of the subject. It merely states the case of spiritualism in arresting fashion. The most skeptical and bitter opponent of spiritualism could hardly attribute any bias or exaggeration to this testimony.

In view of the great wave of belief in Survival after Death that is sweeping over the world, this book is of immediate interest to thousands of open-minded people who are confused about this doctrine.

Fiction

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Author of "The Amazing Interlude," "K," etc.

DANGEROUS DAYS

"Dangerous Days" is a cross-section of American life during one of the most deeply aroused periods of our history. A nation shaken to its very foundations, the elements of its society thrown into sharp relief, men and women caught up in the great tide of an unsuspected current of life—these are the elements out of which Mrs. Rinehart has created her most important novel.

"Dangerous Days" is a brilliant, penetrating study of married life. Vivid in its picture of American Society, wholesome in its point of view, it is Mrs. Rinehart's ablest writing.

Vigor, honesty and a quickened sensitiveness to the finer spiritual qualities of her characters are the marks of Mrs. Rinehart's work. They stamp this book and are her title to the judgment of the New York Sun: "She is America's foremost woman novelist."

By EDWARD A. STEINER

Author of "On the Trail of the Immigrant," "With the Immigrant Tide," "Aagainst the Current," etc.

SANCTUS, SPIRITUS & COMPANY

12mo. Net, $1.60

With a passion for human freedom and for righteousness the author of "With the Immigrant Tide" has depicted the clash and attrition of new and old world ideals in the story of a young man who returned to the land of his birth after receiving his education in America.

This child of the author's own strangely romantic and eventful life is a character which will enlist the sympathy and the interest of every student of human kind. With his intense, justice loving nature and his overflowing love for his family and friends he suffers bitterly in that little pocket of the world, a racial compound in which Slav and Magyar, German, Roumanian and Hebrew remain unassimilated and unreconciled.

There is a fine strain of realism and humor in this cosmopolitan novel, reminiscent of Zola and blended of brilliancy and pathos. It will charm the reader both as a story of many picturesque characters, and as a realization of the ideals which are now at the heart of the world.

HAPPILY MARRIED

12mo, Net, $1.75

Mrs. Harris is never so happy in her social portraiture as when she is staging for us those inner scenes of domestic life which take place behind the decorative façades that look haughtily upon the outer world. She unfolds her story with characteristic humor and an almost uncanny knowledge of her men and women. The entire society of Sulgrave is involved. The women's club is torn by the violence of the Madden earthquake. The husbands, driven together for mutual support, decide upon a domestic reform which all but wrecks their days. It is out of this chaos that the figure of Mary Madden rises, increasingly strong, resourceful, femininely appealing—a woman of latent power who meets a crisis unflinchingly and works her will by sheer charm and determination to have and to hold her own.

TAKING THE COUNT

12mo, Net, $1.50

Charles E. Van Loan, the good friend of every "fan" in the country, comes back once more in these posthumous sketches of the fighting comrades of the sawdust ring.

"The O. Henry of our national sports," the New York Sun calls him. During the last ten years he made himself the prose laureate of the golf-course, the prize-ring, the diamond, and the race-track. Time was when fight managers used to send Christmas presents of a copy of "Inside the Ropes" to the boxing commission.

Outwardly his stories are compact, clean-cut, bristling with the racy humor of the ring and its hand-picked, richly colored language which is a joy forever; but beneath the surface it is the homely frailties and virtues of mankind that are the design on which he weaves the threads of his joyous tales of sport life.

In these tender and moving stories of an old Frenchwoman and a little boy who passed their days under the great shadow of an alien despoiler Mme. Huard has uncovered for us a reliquary of the spirit, so to speak. One catches here a glimpse of that unfaltering Gallic faith which shines through the dramatic incident of these two stories.

A DAMSEL IN DISTRESS

12mo, Net, $1.60

It is not every damsel in distress who, fleeing from an irate and disapproving brother, can step into a taxi and find a young man ready to do battle for her with no questions asked.

When Maud clandestinely went up to London to see the young man with whom she had fallen in love, she had not counted upon walking into her brother, Lord Belpher. Neither had she counted upon the presence of George Bevan in a convenient cab, much depressed by the lack of romance in real life and fed up with the success of his musical comedy which had just come over from Broadway for a London season.

What happens is Mr. Wodehouse's own story. For a rollicking tale of highly amusing incident, breezy dialogue and likable people, we should say that the author has the perfect prescription.

"By gosh, it is pink!" some brilliant naturalist exclaimed as the Blooming Angel's pink elephant lumbered down the main thoroughfare of the town where she was advertising her new business.

For about eighteen years the Blooming Angel's life work had consisted of wearing a red Tam o' Shanter, cutting classes and going out with her newest suitor. She suddenly acquired a husband who was thoroughly nice but inexperienced in the art of earning a living. And then the fun began.

SUNRISE FROM THE HILLTOP

When the young English girl in this story married an American and left her beloved home to take up a strange and new life in a small New York apartment she started a train of circumstances which make a strongly compelling story of American life and people.

This new novel by the author of "Betty Marchand," which was a study of the modern ambitious business woman, is a book full of fine types of human character, showing the subtle development and transition of a lovable heroine from an immature girl into an interesting woman.

Ataboy! Every story a home-run. Mr. Van Loan's volume of baseball yarns, each one hot off the bat, will strike a vast audience as having all the essential elements of the Great American Novel.

BULLDOG CARNEY

12mo, Net, $1.50

For sheer adventure with a frontier setting one may turn to Mr. Fraser with the assurance of complete satisfaction. But "Bulldog Carney" is more than that. It is a picture of the border land with its mounted police, its Indians, and its half-breeds by a man who lived there for years.

Roosevelt once congratulated Mr. Fraser upon his tales because "they were frankly tales"; while Dr. W. T. Hornaday, director of the New York Zoological Garden wrote: "I drop everything else to tell you that your tiger story is the best that has ever seen the light of printer's ink."

Thus, both as fiction and fact, Mr. Fraser's work makes a powerful appeal and anyone who wants to slip away for a while into a land of daring and romance will find "Bulldog Carney" the magic carpet that will transport him swiftly to the great northwest land of romance and adventure.

THE MAKIN' O' JOE

12mo. Net, $1.50

This all-American honest-to-goodness down-east story reveals a certain "colonel" who can fully qualify for a place beside Sam Slick the Clockmaker, Josiah Allen, David Harum and other like worthies. His inimitable dialect, his hilarious humor, his side-splitting local color stories, his laughable metaphors interspersed with nuggets of hard Yankee common sense are all his very own. The story of the boy Joe, the apple of the old man's eye, and his love affair adds just the necessary touch of romance.

SONIA MARRIED

12mo, Net, $1.75

A few years ago a distinguished young Britain wrote a novel which immediately placed him in the forefront of English writers and became to those who read it a very precious book. "SONIA: BETWEEN TWO WORLDS," McKenna called it and to those who love it, the story becomes a sort of memorial to that dear old life with all its faults, we lived before the war, and to the breathless heroic first year of it. Of an unforgettable realness are the little group of strangely individualized Englishmen and their friends, McKenna made to live before us. The dark O'Rane, he of the blazing vitality, erratic, quixotic, the son of a strange and romantic inheritance, the most dominating figure in modern fiction. And Sonia, whom he loved once and for all time: Sonia, the bright and baffling enigma, the incarnation of the modern woman in her manifestation as the successful London beauty. And the others—you could not have closed the book and said, "Here they end and go out of my life." Now McKenna writes of them again against the somber background of war-disillusioned London. Sonia married to O'Rane, blinded in battle but unconquered, still the master of life. "An Epilogue," says the author. "An even greater work than Sonia," say those who have read it. We predict that SONIA MARRIED will stand as the most altogether penetrating and daring study of modern men and women and their strange reactions on one another in the most complex of situations.

MUFTI

In this new post-war novel the multitudinous threads of civilian life are gathered up. The author's keen insight into human character makes his book particularly valuable. He has gone deeper than the surface emotions of the conventional world and laid bare the souls of a man and a woman as they struggle with the readjustment of their lives after the Great War. Because the writer appreciates the folly, the absurdity and the sorrow of life his characters do not always achieve the ends which were their hearts' desire, but the gentleness and occasional humor of the romance rob it of grimness, and leave one with the feeling that the old order has indeed changed. The long predicted spiritual regeneration brought about by the war is shown with much effective and convincing circumstances.

JEREMY

The real beauty, tenderness and gaiety of childhood is an elusive thing—too elusive often to be caught and pressed into words. By some magic of his own Hugh Walpole has made live again in "Jeremy" the childhood that we all knew and that we turn back to with infinite longing.

With affectionate humorousness Mr. Walpole tells the story of Jeremy and his two sisters, Helen and Mary Cole, who grow up in Polchester, a quiet English Cathedral town. There is the Jampot, who is the nurse; Hamlet, the stray dog; Uncle Samuel, who paints pictures and is altogether "queer"; of course Mr. and Mrs. Cole; and Aunt Amy.

Mr. Walpole has given his narrative a rare double appeal, for it not only recreates for the adult the illusion of his own happiest youth, but it unfolds for the child-reader a genuine and moving experience with real people and pleasant things.

THE YOUNG VISITERS

With a Preface by Sir James Barrie 12mo, Net, $1.00

This is an astonishing and delectable piece of fiction, the work of a writer who, at the time of its composition, was only nine years of age.

The author's naiveté, her deliciously consistent sense of character and of the life led by the upper classes of England will make the book a thing of joy wherever humor is cherished. A great writer and child-lover to whom the book was shown said of it: " 'The Young Visiters' is a scrumptious affair and fit to make all the right people jump with joy."

The author's spelling has been scrupulously retained. There is a reproduction of a page of the original manuscript, a portrait of the author at nine and a very delightful introduction by Sir James Barrie.

PINK ROSES

12mo, Net, $1.75

When the actuality of things is too hard to bear we go out and capture an illusion, a semblance of happiness, which we cling to with splendid folly until it becomes reality.

Trevor Matthew could not go to war. Of his two Cambridge friends whose rooms he had shared, one was buried in Sulva bay, the other was smashed up beyond a desire for society. Matthew couldn't bear it, and by accident his illusion came to him—a lady who wore pink roses.

We watch the pink roses while they wither and Matthew growing strong enough to pick up the old traditions. Mr. Cannan has carried a step further that portrayal of modern London, the work of an idealist at war with shams, and even at its most intolerant moments full of a realization of beauty.

OPEN SESAME

Mrs. Baillie Reynolds, who won her laurels in the kingdom of pure romance, says of her own work: "I always was, and still am, the story-teller pure and simple. I do not like the didactic novel, my favorite authors are those who produce romance, whether upon the ivory of the miniature, or upon the large canvas of adventure."

In OPEN SESAME she has portrayed the tremendous adventure of the war as experienced by those who stayed at home. Ismay Waldron, and her swift poignant friendship with Hammond, the American boy whom she met at an old French Chateau at Fort d'Olonne, is the heroine of the title story, and a promise of what the other stories achieve.

HERITAGE

This book is a first novel. Hugh Walpole wrote to a friend: "I am writing in the midst of great pressure to ask you to look very specially at a novel, 'Heritage.' I think you will agree with me that it is a very remarkable one."

In its extraordinary creation of two contrasting and individual atmospheres, English and Spanish, the author discloses a power of the greatest promise. One follows with a breathless anxiety the fortunes of Ruth Pennistan, fated to be torn by two elemental strains which are the measure of her heritage. The book leaves a mental image that does not grow dim for days.

THE FOUR ROADS

Writers who can take us into the very heart of English country life—the life of farm and village—are rare enough, and Sheila Kaye-Smith is among the first of them and steadily advances her craft.

The book is an admirable study of rustic character and environment, worked upon by the remote and unintelligible tragedy of the Great War, which descended like a cloud of doom upon the corner of Sussex which the author knows so well.

"The Four Corners" is free from the false romance of the picturesque novelist, indeed, it is just because of her unromantic method Miss Kaye-Smith realizes and conveys the genuine dignity of the lives of six people in a little English village.

Simonetta had the face of the original of Botticelli's paintings of Judith, Venus and the Veritas. Her father had painted her portrait a thousand times, always selling it as a copy of the famous lost painting of Simonetta, the beloved of Giuliano de Medici.

One night, as Thurston left the house, after examining the painting which attracted him powerfully, Simonetta spoke to him, and then comes what a critic calls "the one perfect love story. It should be printed in letters of gold on Vellum."

THE MOON AND SIXPENCE

In this book, the first since his "OF HUMAN BONDAGE," Mr. Maugham has done an audacious story of the secret desires that afflict and glorify humanity. No one, says an English critic, can "doubt his daring as a dispassionate realist."

The conception of Charles Strickland is fantastic, but it is done with such a power of analysis that it overwhelms one with its reality. The stock broker who after twenty years of married life walks off from his family for a career in painting and finally drifts to the South Seas, where he does rare and beautiful work while leading a savage life, is a figure of extraordinary fascination and eccentric appeal.

The extraordinarily hazardous enterprises, the breathless escapes and the dazzling audacities through which Hannay pursues or is pursued by the most dangerous spy in England; and the secret workings of The Hidden Hand in their countless ramifications, interwoven with a romance at once tender and spirited, make up this story done in Colonel Buchan's most brilliant and acceptable manner.

A novel of remarkable power and characterization. A first book by a new writer that is arousing the greatest curiosity as to its authorship. No less a judge than Sir Arthur Conan Doyle says of it: "The best book I've read this year is THE BORN FOOL by John Walter Byrd."

"Mr. Byrd's novel reads as if Hardy, Phillpotts and W. B. Maxwell had collaborated. Conan Doyle says it is the best novel he has read in a year, which fact alone should make it worthy of consideration."—New York Sun. "For a character study no novel of the year has equalled it."—The Springfield Union.

SHOPS AND HOUSES

12mo. Net, $1.50

With the indignation of youth against the instinct of oppression as its theme, this is an absorbing story of modern life in an English suburban town, near enough to London to be the home of city men. It is an exquisitely humorous picture of small-town snobbishness. A black-sheep of one of the "first families" has the effrontery to return and set up as a grocer in Beckwith itself! The solution here of the exciting tangle wrought is through love. And even Mr. Swinnerton has never been happier than in his portrayal of Louis Vechantors, of Dorothy and of Veronica—and of the town gossip, Miss Lampe. "One marvels at the extraordinary acuteness of it all."—London Bookman.

SECOND MARRIAGE

This story of a remote corner of the English fens is a book of notable power and distinction, by a writer new to American readers.

Miss Meynell is a daughter of Wilfred and Alice Meynell, whose names are familiar to all readers of contemporary English literature.

Miss Meynell tells the story of a family established for generations on English soil. Her characters are visualized with quite haunting clarity and in the story of the marriages of the daughters of the family her work discloses a fine distinction which has brought about a comparison with the writings of Jane Austen.

This book introduces to American readers a writer whose style has been aptly likened to "a painting upon ivory," so luminous are the figures which her pages leave with us.

Mr. MacGill gazes after his dark Rosaleen as the hero of this tale gazed after the barefoot girl who slipped through his fingers down vistas of a vanishing life.

A romance that has all the passion and startling beauty of the genius of Patrick MacGill.

"It is one of Mr. Walpole's achievements in this book that along with his philosophic study of Russian minds and matters, he maintains a running, throbbing story of the romance-tragedy of the Markovitch home."—New York World.

THE ROLL-CALL

12mo. Net, $1.50

He had about him the air of having been born to greatness: a nonentity, at first, in Chelsea, George Cannon, fresh from the historic Five Towns, meant in the end to yield to nobody in distinction and renown. Mounting through succeeding strata of literary, artistic, political and fashionable society, George became familiar with the organic existence of London from the inside, together with brilliant glimpses of Paris, where reside the parents of the strange girl whom he marries. There is another girl, too, in the story, and the complications of George's existence between the two produce a striking drama. The most brilliant prospects spread out before the hero—and then the great war begins. The novel closes with that dramatic touch of naturalism which is at all times the finger-print of Bennett's soundest art. Though George is the son of Hilda Lessways, the book is quite independent of the Clayhanger series as a work of richly colored art.

LOVE LAUGHS LAST

12mo, Net, $1.75

Lovers of romance have a real joy awaiting them in the reading of this very charming tale of English love in days gone by a hundred years or more.

Here is the sea-going David King, silent son of a silent father; devoted to his mother, one of the most charming characters in the book. David, in love with Nancy but engaged to Theodora, who is the forerunner of all "advanced women," presents the problem; but for David and Nancy the author reserves the warm glow of adventure and happiness; for Camilla, David's mother, the fragrance of untroubled, irresponsible age; and for Theodora, the deserved career of an early bluestocking.

MIDAS AND SON

12mo. Net, $1.60

The fortune of Sir Aylmer Lancing was one of the accidents which happen at rare intervals. A young, adventurous Englishman seeking riches in America, he became a power in the financial world almost over night, through successful land speculation, only to have the curse of King Midas fall upon himself and his only son, Deryk.

Stephen McKenna, a leader in the group of young authors who have laid the foundations for a new epoch in the English novel, has written of the same people whose personalities were the charm of "Sonia"; but it is the tragedy of wealth and not of war with which he is now concerned.

The Athenaeum says of his work, "It is perhaps the herald of the new dawn some of us look forward to in literature—the return to sanity, and the art that is symbolism, the art that has for impulse the great basic facts of life."

A WOMAN'S MAN

12mo, Net, $1.60

With great artistry and ruthless analysis and vivisection this book unfolds the life of an artist, a literary man, who, meeting a measure of success, is forsaken by his talent in middle life.

Larger and larger upon his horizon looms the shadow of sensuality. At the outset of his career de Vancourt is possessed by purer ambitions. And throughout his life, by fits and starts, they reassert themselves, only to be engulfed and eventually perish by reason of his eternal infatuations.

The book is remarkable for its diabolically clever study of the human spirit. Torn between his passion for art and his obsession for women, vain, selfish and weak, de Vancourt is in striking contrast with the figure of Bernadette, his wife, a beautiful and Madonna-like presence whose existence is a joy and who comes into the story like a scent of lavender in old gardens.

The King's widow never believed that her husband had been killed by Revolutionists. She had never seen the King. The story of how she never gave up hope of his return, and how the young King, escaping death and imprisonment, succeeded in establishing the right to his kingdom, is a moving and breathless one.

The frail destinies of Kings and Princes, the lure of unexpected happenings, the trend of future European politics—all of these, and more, make Mrs. Baillie Reynolds' new book more than a passing ship on the sea of romance.

Not since George Moore's "A Mummer's Wife" has there appeared a story of the stage of the richness and substance of this romance of the theater by one of the leaders of the younger and uncompromisingly honest students of life and character in England today. It is a novel of the complexities of human relationship which a less consummate writer would not have dared to attempt.

When the girl who was to play Ariel in a production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" came to London from Paris she had no prescience of her glittering destiny. Then, a drama of three loves, and she became one of the brilliant actresses of the London stage—only to cast away her success at its height and marry an idealist like herself.

The book illustrates a further phase in the conflict between idealism and commercial and social machinery, which has been the subject of Mr. Cannan's previous novels.

A tale of the sword and the strong right arm of a gallant, brave-hearted gentleman—one who served his King and his lady with a wit as keen as his blade.

The warp of this medieval tapestry is the gorgeous pageantry of chivalry and the woof the significance of historic beauty.

If you like rich atmosphere, if an old-fashioned love story pleases you, if you are fascinated by exciting adventure and enticing suspense, you should read this "Romance of Old Cambrai."

THE TALE OF MR. TUBBS

12mo. Net, $1.50

That grotesque accident Mr. Tubbs, the long, lean, sad offspring of a middle-aged governess who joked in Greek and a father who married late in life and never got over his bachelor's loathing of babies and bottles and infantile noises, is indeed "A knight without armour."

Mr. Tubbs, adrift in the world, with a comfortable income and a ridiculously refined countenance, becomes the victim of a lodging-house keeper, "a decayed gentlewoman reduced in circumstances." Mr. Tubbs decides that discretion is the better part of valor, and beats a retreat. He is followed unfortunately by the housemaid and her irritated yellow cat "Gingy," both of whom had developed a fatal fondness for the unlucky bachelor.

SIMON

12mo, Net, $1.50

"The master's no hisself!" said Simon Rattar's housemaid the morning after a strange man had been seen on the grounds of the lawyer's house. "I tell you, Janet, never have I seen Mr. Rattar look the way he looked at breakfast!"

The clerks at the office noticed a strange surliness in his manner that morning; soon the whole village had noticed that the county lawyer had changed in some curious, indefinable, disquieting way, and they avoided him.

Then a terrible thing disturbed the quiet countryside. Sir Reginald was found murdered. Simon Rattar, as his family lawyer and as procurator fiscal, took charge of the case. Much against his will a London detective was called down—and stepped into a maze of mystery which is finally explained in a most remarkable and quite unforeseen way.

THE MAN WHO FELL THROUGH THE EARTH

12mo, Net, $1.50

There was a revolver shot, a piercing scream—a woman's scream—and the little stenographer and a young lawyer from the office across the hall rushed into the private office of the bank president, and found—nothing at all.

Amos Gatley has disappeared. Manning, who had just asked Gatley to consent to his marriage with Gatley's ward, had also disappeared. The working out of the apparently unsolvable mystery is due to the ingenuity of that master detective Penny Wise, and his vivacious little assistant Zizi, who worked indefatigably on every clue and then scored by a stroke of genius. Carolyn Wells, the master builder of mystery tales, has never done anything more puzzling or more alluringly entertaining.

Raffles Haw is a distinct addition to the gallery of famous Doyle characters. Possessing the secret of the "golden touch," he discovers that his alchemy, besides creating gold, puts to the test the natures of the people who profess to be his friends.

A fantastic tale of impossibilities made believable by the sheer skill of their telling. Sir Arthur is here as he always has been "The master of every trick of the story-teller's art."

THE NIGHT OPERATOR

12mo, Net, $1.50

Frank Packard was fairly compelled to drop civil engineering and give all his time to writing at the insistent demand of the public for more stories such as THE WIRE DEVILS.

In THE NIGHT OPERATOR you will follow with spellbound interest a panorama of rushing mountain rivers and dangerous curves, of brave men responsible for the safety of others, who meet their obligation with high hearts and abounding courage.

And when the book is read you will recall with delight "Toodles," the spunky little night operator, "Royal Carlton," the big superintendent, "Regan," the purposeful master mechanic, and "Timmy O'Toole," the valorous Irishman, and say to yourself, "Packard has done it again; written another breathless adventure story; I hope he goes on writing them forever."

DANGER AND OTHER STORIES

12mo, Net, $1.50

Here is a new volume of Conan Doyle stories which run the whole gamut of this famous author's many-sided genius, stories in all the veins of which he is reckoned master—and some in a quite new field as well. There are stories of danger and of daring, of mystery, of intricate analysis, and of horror; there is a story in the manner of his well-remembered surgeon tales. And finally, there is a portion of the book which captures the exquisite, evanescent, unconscious charm of childhood and reveals a new delight and delicacy of creation in the style of this master of varied instruments.

Suppose you had chucked your job and were in love with a girl and had no money. And then, out of the sky, dropped eighty millions which you couldn't take without nine chances to one of being exterminated by a mysterious criminal band. What would you do?

What Jack Norman did was to hire an actor. The insurance rates were high and the chances of getting away with it pretty slim. But that doesn't spoil the story. Mr. Footner has a way of putting more into his mystery tales than mere thrill. There is no lack of that, as one may gather, but his people are especially appealing and there is a delightful whimsy about his yarns.

ONE OF THREE

12mo, Net, $1.50

Strange are the experiences of Hope Browning—heroine of Clifford Raymond's newest mystery story. It is a story reminiscent of Balzac in the ingenuity of its plot and setting.

If you had been adopted, as a child, by a family in a small town . . . . and in the garden of your home were parrots, paroquets, monkeys . . . . if you had grown to womanhood in an environment of constant mystery . . . . if two men admired you, one offering a life of loving contentment amid new surroundings, the other an opportunity for self-sacrifice with a continuation of your early life mystery, which would have been your choice? The baffling strangeness of the plot will delight the devotee of the "mystery story."

12mo. Net, $1.50

Jimmie Dale returned. Instantly every detective in headquarters was on the old scent, every crook in the Bowery clamoring for his blood. Jimmie Dale's case is one of the strangest on record. To Clancy he was Smarlinghue, the dope fiend. To the Gang he was Larry-the-Bat, stool pigeon; to Headquarters, The Grey Seal. And besides all this, he was Jimmie Dale, Fifth Avenue clubman. Mr. Packard has succeeded in evolving a startling and unparalleled plot which will pique the curiosity and command the fascinated interest of the most blasé reader of detective stories.

THE PECULIAR MAJOR

12mo. Net, $1.50

The Peculiar Major, who is really not so very peculiar when one knows all the circumstances, is a greatly misunderstood man.

His friends and acquaintances do not realize that it is the magic ring which he picked up during the British Campaign in Palestine which makes his actions appear a trifle mysterious, and, if we must say it, just a little unreasonable.

It is particularly unreasonable for him to fearfully complicate his love affairs by remaining invisible, but he has such wild adventures, himself, and he is so much fun, that his faults we are sure will be overlooked and his escapades thoroughly enjoyed.

As the countless people who were intrigued by "Ransom" know, Mr. Roche can be relied on to tell a corking tale. EYES OF THE BLIND fulfills all expectations.

Events move swiftly. Deems, a reporter on the Record, was disturbed one night by a man whom he had never seen before and who died in his room without any explanation whatsoever.

Deems endured patiently the next few days when attempts were made to murder him, one by Lydia Gryce who was investigating Pan-Germanism in America in a way which threatened to disrupt her father's newspaper and land them in jail. At this inopportune moment Deems fell in love with his editor's daughter. At the finish the tangle of mystery and romance is happily unraveled.

THE MYSTERY OF THE SUMMER-HOUSE

Just enough interest to divert. Not too much problem to weary—a very cleverly depicted mystery, well sustained in plot, ingenious in its situations, thrilling in its episodes and clues which succeed each other in climax after climax. The book makes claim only, but admirably sustains that claim, to being an entertaining, baffling, and highly interesting narrative, sufficiently tense to woo the reader away from the cares of life for a spell.

THE SKY PILOT IN NO MAN'S LAND

It may seem a far cry from the rolling prairies, the foothills and the rugged canyons of the American West to the shell holes and the barbed wire entanglements from the North Sea to the Vosges. Yet the outposts of civilization have shifted within three decades from the Far West to the Near East, and Ralph Connor with rare gift for discerning the great spiritual forces which have determined liberty and freedom discovers to us in this new story that the same men who made the fight for freedom and liberty in "The Sky Pilot of the Foothills" have once again by their undaunted spirit and high courage won the struggle for humanity and civilization and saved the world from a new order of savagery and brutality. As in his tales of the West this story abounds in humanity, heroism and tenderness—and again, as in the Western books, this one is the dramatic recital of an eye-witness, for Ralph Connor is now as then the beloved Sky Pilot, the friend of ranchmen and of soldiers—a great leader in the cause of freedom and human love. In a greater cause and in a greater fight he displays that sympathy, heroism and tenderness which has endeared him to the hearts of countless readers.

THE TOUCH OF ABNER

12mo, Net, $1.50

From the dramatic moment when Abner subscribes $1000.00 to the Orphanage Fund and explodes a financial bomb in the close-fisted meeting of the folks at Glucom, Mr. Cody unfolds a sprightly tale of much amusement.

The fact that Abner hasn't even a small fraction of the proffered thousand disturbs his wife but not himself. How he outwits the scheming Rackshaw, saves the farm with its valuable deposit of gravel and very generally and thoroughly rouses the community, is set forth with spontaneous and contagious humor.

A very pleasant love story runs through the book with which Jess, Abner's daughter, and her friend Belle Rivers, have considerable to do.

We predict that Mr. Cody will not only delight the large audience which always waits expectantly for each new book of his, but will win an entirely new and greater following with this striking story. If you will give it a chance to "get its hooks into you" you will not lay it down until with a supreme sense of joy and satisfaction you reach the final sentence.

THE GIRL OF O. K. VALLEY

12mo, Net, $1.50

Here is a simon-pure romance full of charm of atmosphere and vigor of action, by an author whose stories of Canadian life are distinguished by refinement of style and sentiment and touched with warm humanity.

After a short time of poignant happiness with the young lover who had welcomed her to Okanagan Valley, the nets of treachery and intrigue are flung over Kathie by her avaricious uncle and her jealous cousin Lizbeth. The solution of the mystery and the happy ending mark the author as a master of the Far North West adventure story.

As a character study of two girls, one blessed with aristocratic birth and bearing, and of delicate beauty of mind and body; the other a flamboyant, arrogant young belle, this book will arrest the attention of all who admire vigorous, wholesome stories with a bit of mystery attached, and a lucky ending.

MIST OF MORNING

The author of that charming story "Up the Hill and Over" has amply proved herself the delightful and finished interpreter of the illusive beauty of childhood, youth and love's young romance.

The large audience which she won with her earlier tale will find the same winsomeness and spontaneous expression in "Mist of Morning."

A delicate and perfectly natural humor sparkles in ever recurrent flashes throughout the narrative. The plot unfolds so deftly and so convincingly that in the words of the reviewer, "You find that you have been tricked into sitting up all night with a book so arresting that it brooks no laying down until finished."

Will Levington Comfort has written another stirring tale of the sea.

Magdalena Island, in mid-Pacific, is on few mariners' charts. But it floats dream-like in its own hazy beauty on Mr. Comfort's pages. In its sensuous setting is enacted in a few months a strange drama of warfare, greed, passion and devotion that breaks for just a moment the age-long silence of its life.

This is Mr. Comfort in his most alluring and enjoyable mood. "The Yellow Lord" is a story to read for the sheer delight of stepping for a while into a world of glamour and adventure.

A shipwreck precipitates a handsome, modern, warm-blooded young woman into the arms of a blind man and leaves them stranded on the desert Chilean coast. The man carries the woman, who has broken her ankle, while she acts as his eyes. What human being could resist such a situation? Of course the man falls madly in love. Exhausted by their wanderings they stumble upon the cabin of a recluse and dreamer, into whose lonely life the woman comes with irresistible lure. The author pictures these three souls under the stress of primal human passions. It is a keen analysis of human nature under the most unconventional circumstances.

THE SHADOW OF THE PAST

12mo. Net, $1.50

There is a great similarity between the life of our own great Northwest Prairies and the life of the South African Veldts, for in each has been born and developed a fearless spirit of liberty—bordering in times of stress upon lawlessness. "The Shadow of the Past" is a thrilling story of the Veldt —of a great love across which came the blight of race prejudice and espionage. In Africa as in America, Teuton craft and deviltry sought by intrigue and malicious device to bring free people under the menace of Prussianism. How the United States of South Africa were saved to self-rule and freedom is the motif of a really thrilling tale of adventure, mystery and love.

CIVILIZATION: Tales of the Orient

This is altogether a performance of brilliant and creative writing. Miss La Motte has absorbed the atmosphere of the East and what emerges from these pages is a creation of vivid and impressive reality.

Her themes are as varied as are the white man's relationships to the East —his physical and spiritual contact with an elusive and foreign people. But the motif of her book is one and unchanging; the humor, the irony and the tragedy of that thing which we call civilization when it comes into conflict either with the ideals or the baseness of the Orient.

By FREDERICK NIVEN

THE LADY OF THE CROSSING

12mo, Net, $1.50

It is with ingenious verve and first-hand knowledge that Mr. Niven portrays life in a raw Western community, his characters drawn with a Whistler-like exactitude and certainty.

Few authors can equal him at an "Up West" tale, for he has lived the life and forgotten nothing of his impressions of that rough frontier land.

There is a fresh note of realism in The Lady of the Crossing—in the sturdy integrity and contagious youthfulness of the young man who comes to Kootenay a stranger, and is caught up into the social life of the place, forming new contacts almost as delightful to the reader as they are momentous to him. A romance all the more charming because of its rugged setting in the far Northwest mountain fastnesses.

JOAN AT HALFWAY

12mo, Net, $1.50

It was many years after the first Wisdom bride came to "Halfway" where the red Wisdom roses bloomed, that little Joan Wisdom whose parents were dead, came back to live with her Scotch-Canadian great Uncle and Aunt in the strange old house near the sea.

"Halfway"!—what a world of things to think about it gave to sixteen-year-old Joan. There were the locked doors of secrecy and buried hurt and the anger of old Wisdom quarrels, the hereditary gypsy curse of the Thirst that was to fall upon every male in the Wisdom line and the promise,

"Sons' sons and daughters' sons,
But son's son shall end it."

Then there were the other Wisdoms of whom she must not speak, and whom she must never see—how she longed to know them! How Joan lifted the curse of Romany and reunited the proud Wisdoms is a story woven of romantic legends from the "land of orchards." This blue and gold romance of a real sunshine girl is a sure gloom dispeller, as good a cure for the blues as could be found.

IN ORCHARD GLEN

12mo. Net, $1.50

Whether one takes this as an idyll of the orchards and lanes of Ontario and the quaint, humorous Scotch folk who inhabit them, or the dauntless spirit of the New World and all that it means to be young in these days, or as sheer romance, intended to delight, this remains a profoundly moving tale. Perhaps it was mutual understanding that fed the "boy and girl affair" of Christina and Gavin, the two ugly ducklings of the village. But their lightly-taken love was to grow until of itself it made the ducklings into swans. For whimsical humor, vivid drama, and power of characterization, nothing more thoroughly convincing has been written of those warriors of "the home flank."

THE MAN FROM THE CLOUDS

For a young man of regular habits to drop out of the clouds in a parachute and to land squarely in the center of a mysterious naval plot on the island of Ransay in the middle of the North Sea, is certainly something out of the ordinary. There was no time to send for help so Roger Merton simply pitched in. That he escaped unscathed except for an affair de coeur was due to leniency on the part of his unseen and ruthless opponents.

The beauty of this story lies in its convincing, close-knit and intriguing action and in the underlying romance and humor that make it alive. "The most joyous and one of the most dextrous spy tales that I have ever read," says an English critic in the London Star.

DAVID BLAIZE AND THE BLUE DOOR

Those who cherish the fantasies and humorous inventions that take their immortal place in the world of books and humans as "Alice" has done, will do well to read this altogether delightful story in which David Blaize steps through a blue door in his pillow and has incredible experiences in Wonderland.

If this were an ordinary narrative of childhood, Mr. Benson would have written it, probably, before he presented David Blaize as a schoolboy; but as a fantastic fairy tale, a rainbow bubble of the imagination, one is far less surprised at meeting David at the age of six than at the extraordinary things which happen in the land beyond the Blue Door.

BARBARA OF BALTIMORE

Against a background of picturesque Southern life and its historic associations, Miss Taylor sets a story of unusual gaiety, brimming over with humor and tantalizing mystery that constantly baffles explanation.

This new telling of the life story of Jesus is wonderfully simple, vivid and beautiful. The Beloved Disciple himself, with unerring insight and sympathy, seems to be talking directly to you about his daily companionship with the Great Physician. The teachings of the Master are set in an atmosphere truly oriental and strikingly realistic. The Christ and his Disciples and the persons he meets, greets and touches with healing or comforting hand live for the reader as if seen in a panorama.

Here is a Fifth Gospel which might have been resurrected from some ancient ruin where it had lain all these centuries. It will give the Christian world a new vision of the gospel message and a new purpose to accomplish its realization. We believe the book is destined to become a living power in winning men, second only to that of the four gospels themselves.

CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE

New Edition. 12mo, Net, $1.50

These discourses on the great Doctrines of the Faith are the ripe fruit of long years of distinguished service in the Christian Ministry. The author says of them "As a man's experience of the difficulties and failures of human life and of the abounding grace of God, and of the power of the Christian redemption, increases, he comes to see great truths more clearly; their apparent relative magnitudes are modified; there is a change in the atmosphere through which he sees them; perhaps they are transfigured by the splendors of sunset."

"Christian Doctrine" very properly has been accorded a permanent place among the standard works on the subject. This new edition is issued to meet a very insistent demand for the republication of Dr. Dale's great discussions of cardinal Christian truths.

FOREIGN MAGIC

Illustrated. 12mo. Net, $1.50

Here is a book which throws an intensely vivid light upon the inter-relations of resident Americans and the people of China.

The author's delicate vignettes of Chinese life reveal to us curiously dramatic pictures of the magic wrought by American physicians upon the minds and bodies of their Chinese patients.

It is a cross-section of the Oriental life of today, told with delicate insight and sympathy, revealing to us the strength, the weakness and the possibilities of this awakening giant among nations.

THE SCHOOL IN THE MODERN CHURCH

12mo, Net, $1.50

The Church, facing the new world, planning an adequate program of training for the young—that is the gist of this book. How the modern church —rural, village or city—may have a school so big in purpose, so broad in scope, so efficient in method that the young may be prepared to make a new and better world. A book of methods, plans, details and "how" material, all drawn out of actual, successful experience.

THE DISEASE AND REMEDY OF SIN

Octavo. Net, $2.50

The learned author having been a student of both medicine and theology is happily qualified to present an analogue of spiritual and physical ills and their corresponding cures. In part one, Sin as a disease is analyzed as to character, symptoms and results. "A Table of Spiritual Diseases" visualizes the author's statements for the reader. In part two, the sure remedy for soul sickness which lies in the knowledge of God as expressed in the Gospel is set forth in language that cannot fail to impress and convince. An exhaustive and yet concise handling of the subject.

A brilliant example of compression and literary excellence, teeming with apt and entertaining illustrations from both medical and spiritual authorities.

LETTERS TO A SOLDIER ON RELIGION

12mo. Net, $0.75

The war is over but the soldier remains with us—demobilization will be a long process. The regular army will doubtless be very largely increased and universal military training is a probability, so that Mr. Gardner's book will find a large and permanent field of usefulness. The man-to-man approach of these letters will win the approval of the boys in khaki. The author in a direct, intimate, sane way writes of Providence, Prayer, Immortality, Death and Forgiveness. Soldiers will welcome these stimulating, positive messages, and all who have to address bodies of military men will find this little volume full of suggestions.

HEARTH AND ALTAR

The importance of family worship is assumed but its practice is beset with difficulties. The problem is solved by Mr. Joseph in this volume which is unique among books of its character. He has selected a topic for each week and follows it through the days of the week with Scripture and prayers touching on the needs of our own times. Provision is also made for special days of the year. Every feature of the volume is praiseworthy. "I like 'Hearth and Altar' very much indeed. The best praise that I can give the book is the fact that we shall use it at once in our family worship."—Professor A. T. Robertson.

CHRISTIANITY'S UNIFYING FUNDAMENTAL

Are you dissatisfied with your state of mind religiously?

Have you distressing doubts?

Do you sometimes question the reality of Christ and his teachings?

Then by all means read this remarkable book. It will pick you up bodily and place you on a rock-ribbed, unshakable religious foundation. It is a book for every man who wants a perfectly frank, keenly intelligent, unbiased and convincing discussion of religious problems.

A hundred striking sentences clamor for quotation here if space would permit. You will find them in the book, and a thousand others just as important. You will want to read this volume from cover to cover and then begin and read it all over again.

THE RIDDLE OF NEARER ASIA

Illustrated. 12mo. Cloth. Net, $1.25
12mo. Paper. Net, $0.50

An account at once fascinating and eminently practical of the Nearer East. A picture of the modern problem. Mr. Mathews depicts the flow and ebb of civilization in these once fertile cradles of the world's culture.

The Nearer East is one of the biggest problems confronting the Peace Conferees. It is one of the gravest for Reconstruction. When it becomes possible to board a train in Paris for Singapore or Cape Town, the Nearer East will be the keystone of the system.

Mr. Mathews shows the Near East in its present decadence and in its true political, economic and social relation to the world.
